EXTRACTS FROM THE

Preface to the American Standard Version

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY THOMAS NELSON AND SONS

This edition of the Revised New Testament of 1881 embodies a purpose entertained by many members of the American Revision Committee almost from the publication of the work. The list of passages in which the New Testament Company dissented from the decisions of their English associates, when it was transmitted to them, bore the heading, "The American New Testament Revision Company, having in many cases yielded their preference for certain readings and renderings, present the following instances in which they differ from the English Company, as in their view of sufficient importance to be appended to the revision, in accordance with an understanding between the Companies."

The knowledge of the existence of these suppressed deviations naturally stirred a desire that they should be made accessible to at least the American public. This desire, especially on the part of those whose generous interest in the work from its inception had enabled the American revisers to meet the pecuniary outlay its preparation involved, they were not unwilling to gratify. The obligation they felt, however, to guard as far as they might the purity and integrity of the version, led them to pledge their support for fourteen years to the editions issued by the University Presses of Oxford and Cambridge. But the reiterated suggestion to those Presses to publish an edition especially for American readers not having met with favor, they acceded to the overtures of the Messrs. Nelson and engaged in preparing gratuitously the desired edition, to be issued when the expiration of the period specified should open the way for its honorable publication. The publishers, on their part, agreed to protect the version in its integrity, and to sell the book at a price not exceeding a fair profit on its cost.

In the preparation of this edition no attempt has been made to preserve a full record of the other readings and renderings than those that appeared in the work as published in 1881 which were preferred by the American revisers. The Appendix of that edition, however, was not only hastily compiled under pressure from the University Presses, but its necessarily limited compass compelled, as the original heading intimated, the exclusion of many suggestions that the American Company held to be of interest and importance. These, amounting in the aggregate to a considerable number, have been incorporated in the present edition. The opportunity has been taken also to introduce not a few alterations, individually of slight importance, yet as a body contributing decidedly to the perfection of the work. But the survivors of the New Testament Company have not felt at liberty to make new changes of moment which were not favorably passed upon by their associates at one stage or another of the original preparation of the work.

Respecting details, but little need be added to the ample statements made in the Preface prefixed to the work on its first appearance.

In the delicate matter of rendering the names of the several coins that occur in the New Testament, we have departed somewhat from our English brethren. For the Greek λεπτόν the term "mite" has been retained, and for σεδράριος the rendering "farthing" (see Mk. xii. 42). But δραχμή has been translated "penny" (Matt. x. 29; Lk. xii. 6); while in thirteen out of the sixteen instances where in the edition of 1881 the Greek δραχμή was represented by this English word, the term "shilling" has been substituted, not only as corresponding more nearly to the coin's relative value, but also because "penny," according to its modern use, is in some cases highly inappropriate (see Matt. xx. 2; Lk. x. 35; Rev. vi. 6). In the three remaining instances (Matt. xxii. 19; Mk. xii. 15; Lk. xx. 24), the Greek name of the coin has been introduced, in order to meet the obvious requirement of the context. Where the English value of coins is given in the margin, we have added the equivalents in our national currency; but in the case of the talent (Matt. xviii. 24) what is believed to be a more accurate valuation has been given.

In formal particulars, this new edition will show but slight and infrequent deviations from its predecessor. The division of the text into paragraphs in that edition has not been often departed from; and then chiefly in cases where the same matter is found in more than one of the Gospels, and hence uniformity of division seemed desirable. Further, in the Epistles and the Revelation the more decided transitions to a new topic have been indicated by leaving a line blank. The somewhat ponderous and peculiar system of punctuation of the original edition has been in the main adhered to; although, pursuant to the principle there followed, a comma has here and there been dropped which seemed likely to obstruct the reader, and the gradations of thought have been occasionally indicated more distinctly by substituting a semicolon for the overworked colon. The titles of the books, which in the former edition were given as printed in 1611, have been somewhat abbreviated, at the dictate of convenience, and agreeably to usage, ancient as well as modern. They have been altered only in the few instances where the former heading was erroneous (as in the case of the Epistle to the Hebrews), or apt to mislead (as in the case of the Book of Acts), or hardly intelligible to the ordinary reader (as the "General" in the heading of some of the shorter Epistles), or founded in a misapprehension (as in the case of "Saint" prefixed to the names of the Evangelists). Moreover, the alternate title of the New Testament, and the mode of printing the headings of the Four Evangelists' narratives, are designed to recall to mind the inherent signification and primitive use of the terms "Testament" (compare Hebrews ix. 15 f.) and "Gospel." In the Book of Revelation, also, the "Glorias," "Trisagias," etc., have been marked typographically.

In dealing with the Language, the American revisers have endeavored to act with becoming deference and reserve. A few archaisms, such as "how that," "for to," "the which," "howbeit," etc., which are becoming uncouth to a modern ear, have been generally although not invariably discarded. Not a few of the instances of the superfluous use of "do" and "did" as auxiliaries, of "that" as equivalent to "that which," and the like, have also been removed; and current usage has been recognized in the case of forms which King James's revision employed indiscriminately, as "beside" and "besides" (see Mk. iii. 21; 2 Cor. v. 13). But in making these and other slight changes, the American editors have not forgotten that they were dealing with a venerable monument of English usage, and have been careful not to obliterate the traces of its historic origin and descent.

Notwithstanding the caution—as wise perhaps as prudent—which led the English Committee wholly to omit the headings of chapters and pages, and in spite of the disfavor which has been the fate of many attempts to furnish them from the days of Dr. Blayney, who, with four assistants, produced a set which speedily fell into neglect, it has been deemed best to equip the present edition with running headlines, which may serve in some sort instead of a detailed Table of Contents, and as landmarks to a reader familiar with the text. In preparing them it has been the constant aim to avoid as far as possible all pre-commitments, whether doctrinal or exegetical; and with this object in view, the forms of statement employed have been drawn in the main from the Biblical text.

It is not superfluous to mention expressly the fact that in this edition the variant readings and renderings prepared by the American Revision Committee are placed in the margin of the pages, but in as close juxtaposition as possible with the passages to which they relate. The reader's attention is thereby drawn to the circumstance that some degree of uncertainty still cleaves, in the judgment of scholars, either to the text of the passage before him, or to its translation, or to both. Accordingly, when he remembers that, by the rule of procedure which the Committee followed, the translation of 1611 held its place in every instance until an alteration commanded the votes of two-thirds of the revisers, it will become evident to him that a rendering given in the margin may have commended itself to a majority, while still falling short of the degree of approval necessary to enable it to supplant the text. It is known that this was the case in a considerable number of instances, of which the established term "Comforter" as the appellation of the Holy Spirit in the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of John is a notable representative.

The present volume, it is believed, will on the one hand bring a plain reader more closely into contact with the exact thought of the sacred writers than any version now current in Christendom, and on the other hand prove itself especially serviceable to students of the Word. In this belief the editors bid it anew God-speed, and in the realization of this desired result they will find their all-sufficient reward.

The Book of Revelations is saturated with the Old Testament from beginning to end, there being nearly four hundred references to thoughts and events mentioned in the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings. Too numerous to tabulate in the space at command, the student will find ample marginal references to fasten each such incident in its proper Old-Testament locality.

* GENEALOGIES.—The Hebrews were a covenant people whose religion and belongings led them to trace their descent from Abraham. To them belonged the Messianic Hope—Gen. 12:3. A system of land tenure—Num. 36:7; I Ki. 21:3. Of priesthood and kingship bound up with family succession—Ex. 29:9; Ps. 89:3, 4. These begot a concern for genealogies, which shows itself by a recurring formula ("these are the generations") running throughout Genesis—Gen. 2:4; 5:1; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10; 11:27; 25:12, 19; 36:1. The genealogy of kings was viewed as of the first importance, e. g. David—I Chr. ch. 24. Genealogy of priests—I Chr. 9:1; II Chr. 31:16-19; Neh. 12:22, 23. Genealogies satisfied interest regarding the populating of the earth—Gen. ch. 5; I Chr. 1:1. The re-populating after flood—Gen. ch. 10; I Chr. ch. 1. The twelve tribes—I Chr. chs. 2-5. Genealogies are sometimes regressive—I Chr. 6:33-43; Ezra 7:1-5. And sometimes progressive—Ruth 4:18-22; I Chr. ch. 3. Females are named in them when something remarkable occurs, or a land title is involved—Gen. 11:29; 22:23; 35:23-26; Ex. 6:23; Num. 26:33; I Chr. 2:4, 16.

GENEALOGIES OF JESUS.

1. The genealogy given in Matthew is the genealogy of Joseph, the reputed father of Jesus, his father in the eyes of the law. The genealogy given in Luke is the genealogy of Mary, the mother of Jesus, and is the human genealogy of Jesus Christ in actual fact. The Gospel of Matthew was written for Jews. All through it Joseph is prominent, Mary is scarcely mentioned. In Luke, on the other hand, Mary is the chief personage in the whole account of the Saviour's conception and birth. Joseph is brought in only incidentally and because he was Mary's husband. In all of this, of course, there is a deep significance.

2. In Matthew, Jesus appears as the Messiah. In Luke He appears as "the Son of Man," our Brother and Redeemer, who belongs to the whole race and claims kindred with all kinds and conditions of men. So in Matthew, the genealogy descends from Abraham to Joseph and Jesus, because all the predictions and promises touching the Messiah are fulfilled in Him. But in Luke the genealogy ascends from Jesus to Adam, because the genealogy is being traced back to the head of the whole race, and shows the relation of the Second Adam to the First.

3. Joseph's line is the strictly royal line from David to Joseph. In Luke, though the line of descent is from David, it is not the royal line. In this Jesus is descended from David through Nathan, David's son indeed, but not in the royal line, and the list follows a line quite distinct from the royal line.

4. The Messiah, according to prediction, was to be the actual son of David according to the flesh (II Sam. 7:12-19; Ps. 89:3, 4, 34-37; 132:11; Acts 2:30; 13:22, 23; Rom. 1:3; II Tim. 2:8). These prophecies are fulfilled by Jesus being the Son of Mary, who was a lineal descendant of David, though not in the royal line. Joseph, who was of the royal line, was not his father according to the flesh, but was his father in the eyes of the law.

5. Mary was a descendant of David through her father, Heli. It is true that Luke 2:23 says that Joseph was the son of Heli. The simple explanation of this is that, Mary being a woman, her name according to Jewish usage could not come into the genealogy, males alone forming the line, so Joseph's name is introduced in the place of Mary's, he being Mary's husband, Heli was his father-in-law and so Joseph is called the son of Heli, and the line thus completed. While Joseph was son-in-law of Heli, according to the flesh he was in actual fact the son of Jacob (Matt. 1:16).

6. Two genealogies are absolutely necessary to trace the lineage of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the one the royal and legal, the other the natural and literal, and these two genealogies we find, the legal and royal in Matthew's Gospel, the Gospel of law and kingship; the natural and literal in Luke's, the Gospel of humanity.

7. We are told in Jer. 22:30 any descendant of Jeconiah could not come to the throne of David, and Joseph was of this line, and while Joseph's genealogy furnishes the royal line for Jesus, his son before the law, nevertheless Jeremiah's prediction is fulfilled to the very letter, for Jesus, strictly speaking, was not Joseph's descendant and therefore was not of the seed of Jeconiah. If Jesus had been the son of Joseph in reality, He could not have come to the throne, but He is Mary's son through Nathan, and can come to the throne legally by her marrying Joseph and so clearing His way legally to it.

As we study these two genealogies of Jesus carefully and read them in the light of Old Testament prediction, we find that, so far from constituting a reason for doubting the accuracy of the Bible, they are rather a confirmation of the minutest accuracy of that Book. It is amazing how one part of the Bible fits into another part when we study it thus minutely. We need no longer stumble over the fact of there being two genealogies, but discover and rejoice in the deep meaning in the fact that there are two genealogies.—From R. A. Torrey's "Difficulties in the Bible." Copyright, 1907, by Fleming H. Revell Company. Used by permission.

Pharisee nor a disciple of John the Baptist. Called to follow Jesus while at the custom-house.—Mt. 9:9; Mk. 2:14; Lu. 5:27. Gave up office and wealth for Jesus.—Lu. 5:28.

Gave Jesus a Great Feast in Gratitude.—Mt. 9:10; Mk. 2:15; Lu. 6:29. Invited many of his old friends ("publicans and sinners") to the feast.—Mt. 9:10, etc. Other disciples of Jesus there also.—Mt. 9:10. Many of the publicans and sinners led to follow Jesus.—Mk. 2:15. Pharisees and their scribes uninvited.—Mt. 9:11; Mk. 2:16; Lu. 5:30. Many complain to Christ's disciples about this social fellowship of Jesus with publicans and sinners.—Mt. 9:11; Mk. 2:16; Lu. 5:30. Jesus justifies it, and thus his call of Matthew the publican.—Mt. 9:12 f; Mk. 2:17; Lu. 5:31 f.

Chosen as one of the Twelve Apostles.—Mt. 10:3; Mk. 3:18; Lu. 6:15; Acts 1:13.

Always linked in the Gospel Lists with Thomas (Twin).—Either as his twin brother or as more probably his friend.—Mt. 10:3 (after Thomas). In Mk. 3:18 and Lu. 6:15 before Thomas. But in Acts 1:13 Bartholomew and Matthew (and in this order) are joined together.

Traditions.—Eusebius (H. E. III. 24) mentions that he preached to Hebrews in Judea, and before leaving wrote the Gospel—Heb. (Aramaic) that bears his name (Greek). Other traditions connect his name with Ethiopia, Macedonia, Persia.

Date of Gospel of Matthew not known.—Probably between Mark and Luke, and may be as early as A. D. 60. Exact relation of the Aramaic Matthew and Greek Matthew not known. Probably a book of logia or sayings of Jesus preceded the present Matthew.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE GOSPEL OF MATTHEW:

Evidently written by a Jew.—This is plain from the absence of explanation of Jewish customs. Cf. Mk. 7:2-5. Lu. 2:4-13 explains topography of Judea, but not so Matthew.—John 4:4, 10, likewise explains enmity between Jews and Samaritans. Author is much interested also in Jewish origin and aspect of Christianity, though willing to tell the fate of the Jewish people.—Mt. 21:43.

Tone Anti-Pharisaic.—This appears throughout and in particular in Chap. 23, which he alone reports. Here Jesus is represented as denouncing the Pharisees and Scribes with much vehemence. Cf. also the debate in the temple in Mt., Chaps. 21 and 22. As we know, publicans and Pharisees were very antagonistic.

Conceals his Identity.—The name of Matthew occurs in the Gospel only twice.—Mt. 9:9; 10:3. Does not hesitate to call himself a hated publican in Mt. 10:3.

Style Impersonal.—As a methodical business man, tax collector and perhaps bookkeeper, one would expect little that is distinctive in his style. Some verbal peculiarities will be noted later.

Familiarity with Money.—Mentioned more frequently than in Mk. and Lu. Cf. Luckcock's "Characteristics of the Gospels," page 33. Three kinds of money.—Mt. 10:9. Gives two parables of talents not elsewhere found.—Mt. 13:23-35; 25:14-30. Cf. Parable of pounds.—Lu. 19:11-27.

For Jews.—This is plain from the number of points of view. His use of O. T. quotations, to show that Jesus was the promised Messiah of the O. T., the Abrahamic genealogy of Jesus, the giving of the Sermon on the Mount, where the teaching of Christ is related to that of the O. T., these and other points prove it. The readers are supposed to be familiar with Jewish customs.—Mt. 15:1 f; 27:62. This is assumed, as in Mt. 15:2. Has Jewish estimate of value of dreams—1:20; 2:13. He has "Father in Heaven" 15 times, while Mk. has it only twice, and Lu. none. He calls Jerusalem the "Holy City" twice—4:5; 27:53. Not an objective narrative: The book is written with a purpose and selects material to prove that purpose. He combines the words and the deeds of Jesus. Sometimes he alternates. Thus, Deeds—Chap. 4. Words—Chap. 5-7. Deeds—Chaps. 8 and 9. Words—Chaps. 10 and 11:18, etc. Probably the author used a book of sayings of Jesus and marks objective narratives with extra touches of his own from personal knowledge.

Genealogy of Jesus.—As a Jew, and for the Jews he begins (Mt. 1:1-17) his book with a genealogy. Thus he shows that Jesus was a descendant of David (legally through Joseph his reputed father) as the Messiah must be (the Son of David)—Mt. 21:9. He began with Abraham, the father of the Jewish people. In an appeal to Jesus this matter was important.

Conception of Jesus.—He is the Jewish Messiah—1:1-17. Begotten of the Holy Spirit—1:18. Born of the Virgin Mary—1:18, 25; 2:1. As a Babe, worshipped by the Wise Men from the East—2:2, 11. Acknowledged as the Son of God, by the Father at his Baptism—3:17. His Sonship challenged by the Devil—4:1, 6. The Demons recognize his Divine Sonship—8:29. He claims to be the Son of God in a special sense—11:25-27. His favorite term for Himself is the Son of Man—Cf. 12:8, 32 etc. But this Son of Man has a Supernatural Aspect as Judge with Glory and Power—16:28; 19:28; 24:30; 26:31; 26:64. He was indeed God with us—1:23. He definitely claimed to his Disciples to be the Messiah—16:16-20. Yet he foretold His Death at the Hands of the Jewish Rulers and rebuked Peter for not understanding—16:21-23. The Father identified Him as His Son on the Mount of Transfiguration—17:5. He foresew His Death on the Cross as a Ransom for many—20:19, 28. He formally announced Himself as the King Messiah by the Triumphal Entry—21:1-9. They hailed Him as Prophet—21:11. He was thus Prophet, Priest and King as the Son of David, yet David called Him Lord (Humanity and Deity)—22:42-45. Claimed to be Judge over Jerusalem and the whole World—24 and 25. Shed His Blood for the Remission of Sins as symbolized by the Cup in the Lord's Supper—26:28. Claimed to be the Christ, the Son of God, on Oath before Caiaphas—26:63 f. Claimed Power of Supreme Judge over Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin—26:64. Rose from the Dead in Proof of His Claim to be the Son of God, the Messiah—28:9 f. Appeared to the Disciples and commanded them to take the World for Him away from the Devil—28:16-20. This in brief is a sketch of Matthew's picture of Jesus the Christ.

Kingdom of Heaven.—This is Matthew's favorite expression, occurring 32 times and nowhere else in the Gospel—3:2; 4:17; 5:3, 10, 19, 20; 7:21; 8:11; 10:7; 11:11, 12; 13:11, 24, 31, 33, 44, 45, 47, 52; 16:19; 18:1, 3, 4, 23; 20:1; 22:2; 23:14; 25:1. The Phrase Kingdom of God appears in Mt. 4 Times: 12:28; 19:24; 21:31, 43. But Mark uses it 14 Times, Luke 34 Times (8 more in Acts), Paul 8, John 2 (Rev. one more). Cf. Hawkins' "Horae Synopticae," page 25. But this is not all, for Matthew also has the expression, "Kingdom of my Father" (18:29), "Thy Kingdom" (6:10; 20:21), "His Kingdom" (26:28, referring to Himself), "The Kingdom of their Father" (13:43), "His Kingdom" (13:41 referring to the Father. Cf. 6:33), and just "The Kingdom" (13:38, Sons of the Kingdom), "Gospel of the Kingdom" (4:23; 9:35; 24:14), "The Word of the Kingdom" (13:19). The term Kingdom itself has a Jewish Connotation and varies in Exact Shading from Kingdomship or Sovereignty (16:28), Territory (4:8), Organization (12:25), Subjects (19:14), Reign (4:17). It is regarded as already present (4:17; 10:7; 12:28; 13:38), but still to come in greater power and to have a future consummation (13:31, 41; 20:21; 25:34; 26:29). The Phrase, "Kingdom of Heaven," was practically the same as "Kingdom of God," and was probably used so much out of deference to Jewish sentiment concerning avoidance of the name of Deity. It accented also the idea that it was not a temporal earthly Kingdom, but an inward spiritual growth.

Old Testament Quotations.—These are more frequent in Matthew than in the other Gospels, though, as a matter of fact, Mt. is the longest Gospel. There are about 65 in Mt. and 43 in Lu. In Mt. 43 are direct citations while only 19 are so in Lu. Matthew, himself, apart from the discourses of Jesus, makes 10 quotations from the O. T. Mark, only one. These agree less closely with the Septuagint than the others in Mt. Cf. Hawkins' "Horae Synopticae," page 123. These are 1:23; 2:15, 18, 23; 4:15 f.; 8:17; 12:18-21; 13:35; 21:5; 27:9 f. These in particular Mt. uses, the expression "that it might be fulfilled" (1:22); as "there was fulfilled" (2:17); to show how in the Life of Jesus was fulfilled the Messianic hope of Israel. The other Quotations in Mt. are 2:6 (by the Scribes); 3:3, 17; 4:4, 6, 7, 10; 5:4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 21, 27, 31, 33, 43; 9:13; 11:10, 23; 12:7; 13:32; 15:4, 8, 9; 16:27; 17:5; 18:16; 19:4, 5, 18, 19, 26; 21:9, 13, 16, 33, 42, 44; 22:24, 32, 37, 39, 44; 23:38; 24:15, 21, 29, 30; 26:31, 64; 27:35, 46. A number of these are not quoted in the other Gospels, especially those in the Sermon on the Mount. Sermon on the Mount: This is one of the outstanding peculiarities of the Gospel of Mt. Chaps. 5-7. In Lu. 6:17-49 we find what is probably a briefer report of the same sermon. But a large section of the discourse (Mt. 5:13; 6:34) appears in Mt. alone, though certain phrases in Mt. 6:19-34 do reappear in Lu. 12:22-34. But the famous passage in Mt. 5:17-42, where the Teachings of Jesus is set over against that of the O. T. and the current teaching, is not reported in Luke. Mt. alone gives this section which bore so vitally upon the Jewish problem—Lu. 6:27-36 does contain the passage about "love one's enemies" in even a fuller form than in Mt. 5:43-48.

Parables.—Mt. has 2 groups of Parables, one—Mt. Chap. 13, the other in 24:32; 25:46. Ten of these occur only in Mt., viz.: The Tares—13:24-30, 36-43. The Hid Treasure—13:44. The Net—13:47-50. The Pearl—13:45 f. The Unmerciful Servant—18:21-35. The Laborers in the Vineyard—20:1-16. The Two Sons—22:1-14. The Ten Virgins—25:1-13. The Talents—25:14-30. The Parables in Mt. deal with the Kingdom.

Extended Discourses of Jesus.—Besides the Sermon on the Mount and the extended Parables, there are other addresses of Jesus in this Gospel not in the other Gospels. In particular may be noted the Gracious Invitation in 11:28-30, the Prophecy of Simon Peter in 16:17-19; the Exhortation about Forgiveness in 18:15-20; the Denunciation of the Scribes and the Pharisees in Chap. 23; the Picture of the Judgment in 25:31-46; the Great Commission in 28:16-20. Cf. Vincent's "Word Studies," Vol. I, p. 5. Hence in Mt. special emphasis is given to the Teaching of Jesus.

Topical Arrangement.—In Mk. and Lu. the narratives follow in general chronological order, as is also true of John's Gospel. But this is not always true of Mt. The Sermon on the Mount comes earlier than it probably was delivered as a specimen discourse. Then in Chaps. 8 and 9 we have a group of Miracles, as in Chap. 13 we find a group of Parables. The same system runs through the most of the Gospels.

Eschatology.—At many points in the Gospel we have accent put upon the eschatological aspects of the ministry of the Messiah. To some extent this is in harmony with the current Jewish Apocalyptic teaching, but it is free from the merely temporal aspects. Particularly in Chaps. 24 and 25 do we have a Christian Apocalypse (cf. the Book of Revelation), spoken by Jesus in view of His own death and of the destruction of Jerusalem, with the end of the world as the further background. Mt. gives this eschatological discourse at much greater length than Mk. and Lu., and Chap. 25 occurs nowhere else.

World Outlook.—While the Gospel is Jewish in point of view, it is yet distinctively Christian and cosmopolitan. The essential moral teaching of the O. T. is carried further by Jesus from the mere external to the very Spirit and Life (Chaps. 5 and 6). But Mt. is not blind to the larger outlook. He records the Worship of the Babe at Bethlehem by the Magi—2:11. Christ's Praise of a Gentile's Faith—8:10 f. Christ's Visit to Heathen Territory—15:28. The Threat of taking the Kingdom away from the Jews—21:43. The Commission to carry the Gospel to all the World—28:19.

Special Phrases.—Some of these have already been discussed, such as Kingdom of Heaven, Father in Heaven, References to Money, etc. Other characteristic expressions may be noted, like the frequent use of "Their," "Our (your) Father," "Fulfil" of Scriptures, "The Evil One Appeared," "Son of David," "And Behold," "To Swear by, etc."

Josephus.—In his Ant. 18, 5, 2, gives a sketch of John from the political point of view, but he considers him a "good man" who "commanded the Jews to exercise virtue, both as to righteousness towards one another, and piety towards God, and so to come to baptism: for that the washing would be acceptable to Him, if they made use of it, not in order to the putting away of some sins, but for the purification of the body; supposing still that the soul was thoroughly purified beforehand by righteousness."

* PHARISEES: Name.—Separated people, from Heb. Pharash; separated not merely from the Gentiles, but from the common mass of Jews.

Origin.—The exact date is not known. They undoubtedly succeed the Chasidim, or Pious Party, who supported Mattathias in his rebellion against Antiochus Epiphanes, who sought to Hellenize the Jews (s.c. 167). Josephus (Antiquities xiii, v. 9.) traces the Pharisees and Sadducees as distinct parties to the time of Jonathan Maccabeus. But he first calls their names in the reign of John Hyrcanus I (s.c. 135-105).

History.—They strive with the Sadducees for supremacy. John Hyrcanus leaves the Pharisees for the Sadducees. The strife between Alexander Jannæus and the Pharisees is bitter. Salome Alexandra restores the Pharisees to power. The Psalms of Solomon show the hopes of the Pharisees at this time. The Pharisees lose political power, though still represented in the Sanhedrin. They gain and hold popular favor. They survive the destruction of the Temple and Jerusalem. They find power in the synagogue and the Scribes. The Talmud is the expression of Pharisaism, which is still powerful among the Jews. They are at the acme of spiritual power when Jesus comes.

Teachings.—In brief they held to the immortality of the soul, the future judgment, the existence of angels and spirits, the resurrection of the body, the coming of a temporal Messiah. There were many apocalyptic features in their Messianic Kingdom. Hence they often challenge Jesus.

Hypocrisy.—This undue emphasis on the external naturally led to hypocrisy on a large scale. This fact explains the harsh language used about him by John the Baptist (Mt. 3:7) and Jesus—Mt. 5:20; 6:2 ff.; 12:31, 34; Mk. 12:40; Lu. 11:39, 44; 16:15; 20:47; Mt. 23:13-36.

Rejected John the Baptist.—Came to hear John preach, but called by him offspring of vipers—Mt. 3:7. Sent a committee to investigate John—John 1:25. For a season rejoiced in his light—John 5:35. But refused his baptism—Lu. 7:30. Once had fellowship with some disciples of John—Mt. 9:14; Mk. 2:18; Lu. 5:33. Fear the power of John over the people—Mt. 21:26; Mk. 11:32; Lu. 20:6.

Pharisaic Atmosphere.—When Jesus began His work, he was in a world dominated by Pharisaic traditions. This was true of Galilee as well as Judea.

Nobler Types of Pharisees.—Not all Pharisees were of the worst kind. Many of their teachings were true and in harmony with the spirit of the Old Testament. Joseph and Mary, Simeon and Anna, probably reflected the better phase of Pharisaic piety. Gamaliel was neither the worst nor the best.

Bitterness towards Jesus.—The hostility toward Jesus began very early; according to John, at the first visit to Jerusalem during the ministry of Christ—John 2:16 ff. But Nicodemus, a Pharisee, rose above the opposition enough to come to see Jesus by night—John 3:1. They early become jealous of the popularity of Jesus—John 4:1 ff. They dislike His claim to power to forgive sins, and consider it blasphemy—Mt. 9:3; Mk. 2:6 ff.; Lu. 5:21. They murmur at His social freedom with publicans and sinners—Mt. 9:11; Mk. 2:16; Lu. 5:30; 15:1. They complain that disciples of Jesus do not observe stated fasts—Mt. 9:14; Mk. 2:18; Lu. 5:33. They accuse Christ of working His miracles by the power of the Prince of the demons—Mt. 9:34; 11:19; 12:24 ff.; Mk. 3:22 ff.; Lu. 11:14 ff. They attack Him for violating their rules of sabbath observance—Mt. 12:2, 10; Mk. 2:23, 3:2; Lu. 6:5, 7:13-14 ff.; John 5:10, 18; 9:13 ff. Join with Herodians to kill Him—Mk. 3:6. With the Sadducees to tempt Him—Mt. 15:1. With Herodians—Mt. 22:15; Mk. 12:13. Sadducees—Mt. 22:23, 34; Mk. 12:18; Lu. 22:27. To entrap Him Pharisees and Sadducees plot his death—Mt. 27:62; John 18:3. They accuse Jesus of blasphemy in claiming equality with God—John 5:18; 10:33. And finally for calling Himself the Messiah, the Son of God—Mt. 26:63 f.; Mk. 14:61 f. They ridicule Jesus—John 7:48. They accuse Jesus of being a Samaritan and having a demon—John 8:4, 48. They try to entrap Him on many points like: Eternal Life—Lu. 10:25 ff. Divorce—Mt. 19:3; Mk. 10:2. The Greatest Commandment—Mt. 22:34 ff.; Mk. 12:28 ff. Tribute to Caesar—Mt. 22:15 ff.; Mk. 12:13 ff.; Lu. 22:19 ff. They often ask for a sign from heaven, as in Mt. 12:38; 16:1; Mk. 8:11; John 6:30. They challenge His authority—Mt. 21:23, 45; Mk. 12:27; Lu. 20:1. They mock at Christ on the cross—Mt. 27:41 ff. They put a guard by the tomb of Christ—Mt. 27:62 ff. They agree to bribe the soldiers to conceal the fact of the resurrection of Christ—Mt. 28:13 f.

Denounced by Jesus.—As hypocrites—Mt. 6:2-16; 15:7; 23:13-29. As not in the Kingdom of Heaven—Mt. 4:20. As offspring of vipers—Mt. 12:34; 23:33. As inwardly wicked—Lu. 11:39-49. As an adulterous generation—Mt. 12:39; 16:4. As blind guides—Mt. 15:14; 23:16, 19, 24, 26. As whitened sepulchres—Mt. 23:27. As more careless of the Kingdom than publicans and harlots—Mt. 21:31 f. As worthy of Moses' seat, which they held—Mt. 23:21. As being praise—Mt. 23:6 ff. As making their proselytes more than they were themselves—Mt. 23:15. As unworthy of the Kingdom, which shall be taken away from them—Mt. 21:43.

Attitude towards the Apostles.—Indifferent towards them when they merely proclaimed the resurrection of Jesus, doctrine held by the Pharisees. So Gamaliel opposed the death of the apostles—Acts 5:34-40. Resentment toward Stephen—he accented, as Jesus, the spiritual character of worship independent of place or mere ceremony. He Pharisees (Elders, Scribes—Acts 6:12) arraigned Stephen before the Sanhedrin and compassed his death—Acts 6:7-9.

Hatred of Paul.—After his conversion and return to Jerusalem, the Pharisees sought to kill him as a renegade Pharisee—Acts 9:29. It is the Pharisaic Jews who oppose Paul all over the world—See Acts Chaps. 13-28. It is Pharisaic Jews from Ephesus who raise the cry against Paul in Jerusalem—Acts 21:27. Before the Sanhedrin Paul claims to be a Pharisee, as he was, on the point of the resurrection from the dead to divide the Sanhedrin—Acts 23:6 ff. They assert Paul's innocence for the moment—Acts 23:9. But later join in effort to kill him—Acts 24:1.

Pharisaic Pride.—Shared in by Paul once—Acts 22:3; 26:5; Gal. 1:14; Phil. 3:5.

* SADDUCEES: Origin of Name.—Very uncertain, though generally derived from the proper name Zadok, follower of Zadok. Derivation from word meaning "righteous" now given up by most scholars.

Priestly Extraction.—Not all priests were Sadducees, but all Sadducees were priests.

Aristocrats.—The Pharisees had more sympathy with people, up to a certain extent. But the Sadducees were distinctly aristocratic. They belonged to the high priestly class (chief priests).

Connection with Sanhedrin.—In the time of Christ formed a majority of the Sanhedrin and the high priests Annas and Caiaphas were Sadducees. They held the position that remained to the Jews.

Sympathy with Hellenism.—They succeeded the pro-Hellenizing party of Jason and Menelaus and favored adoption of Greek customs in opposition to the Pharisees.

Origin.—Their first appearance was in connection with John Hyrcanus I (B. C. 135-105) whom they won away from the Pharisees because of their more liberal attitude. A bitter fight ensued between Pharisees and Sadducees for power. Now one side, now the other, was victorious. But finally the Romans robbed the Jews of political rule. Then Pharisees remained the chief ecclesiastical teachers (scribes), while Sadducees held the reins of ecclesiastical power (priests).

Teachings.—They were more political than religious, caring nothing for the oral traditions of the Pharisees. They denied the resurrection of the body (Mt. 22:23; Mk. 12:18; Lu. 20:37; Acts 4:1, 2; 23:8). They did not believe in angels or spirits.

(Acts 23:8). They denied foreordination or fate (Josephus, Ant. xiii., v., 9; Var. ii., viii., 14).

Denounced by John the Baptist.—(Cf. Mt. 3:7) as no better than the Pharisees. Joined with the Pharisees in embassy to John the Baptist (John 1:19).

Hated the Pharisees.—They sat with Pharisees in the Sanhedrin, but were ready for an explosion on occasion. Cf. Acts 5:34-39; 23:7-10.

Rejected and persecuted Jesus.—Mentioned by name in the Gospels on but three occasions, but really meant by chief priests (and Pharisees) as in John 7:32, 45; 11:47; Mt. 21:45. Sadducees aroused against Christ much later than the Pharisees and largely on political grounds. They hate the Pharisees, but Jesus more. So they finally join with their old enemies against Jesus in tempting him with a demand for a sign from heaven—Mt. 16:1. They tried to arrest Jesus at the Feast of the Tabernacles—John 7:32, 45. The raising of Lazarus from the dead angered the Sadducees (chief priests) very much—John 11:47. Caiaphas (a Sadducee) offers a solution of the problem of Jesus, his death for personal and political reasons—John 11:49-50. They were enraged by the triumphal entry and entrance into the Temple itself—Mt. 21:15. The cleansing of the Temple angers them again so that they challenge the authority of Jesus—Mt. 21:23; Mk. 11:27 f.

Lu. 20:1 f. They seek to catch Jesus in a tangle about the resurrection—Mt. 22:23; Mk. 12:18; Lu. 20:27. The Pharisees rejoice at the defeat of the Sadducees—Mt. 22:34. They take a leading part in the condemnation of Jesus by the Sanhedrin, being a majority of the body. Cf. Annas and his treatment of Jesus—John 18:13; 19:19. Caiaphas was chief prosecutor—Mt. 26:57, 63, 65. They are active in the charges before Pilate—Mt. 27:12; Mk. 15:3. They stir the multitude to ask for Barabbas instead of Jesus—Mt. 27:20; Mk. 15:11. They mock Jesus on the Cross—Mt. 27:41; Mk. 15:31; Lu. 23:35. They join with the Pharisees in demanding a guard over the body of Jesus—Mt. 27:62. They use bribery on the Roman guard to conceal the fact of the resurrection of Jesus—Mt. 28:11.

Condemned by Jesus.—Along with the Pharisees (Mt. 15:6, 12), unworthy to have the Kingdom of God—Mt. 21:43, 45. As in great error about the resurrection in the case of Jesus—Acts 4:1 f. Filled with jealousy at the success of the apostles—Acts 5:17. Wished to kill them after Peter's speech—Acts 5:33. Result apparently to conversion of some Sadducees—Acts 6:7 (priests), though not all priests were Sadducees.

Oppose Paul.—Before the Sanhedrin Paul took the Pharisee view of the resurrection and arrayed against him the Sadducees in the body—Acts 23:6 ff.

* POSSESSION BY DEMONS. Gr. Daimoniasmos, "to be possessed or held by a demon." In every New Testament passage it is "Demons," not "Devils." Still there is an intimate relation between them. Jesus is represented as struggling with Satan in his casting out of Demons—Mk. 3:27. The belief in that day was that Beelzebub was the Prince of the demons—Mk. 3:22. As reported in Mt. 8:29, the demons recognized their final abode, but whether they were demons who were to be cast into the lake of fire is questionable. The term is "Angeles"—Mt. 25:41. The whole matter is involved in obscurity, but sufficient information is given in the New Testament to justify the belief in the possession of demons.

"In such possession two features may generally be traced. It is allied with and yet distinct from physical disease, and there is almost always something abnormal with respect to the physical development or defect of the sufferer. It is given as the explanation in cases of dumbness—Mt. 9:32; Lu. 11:14. Of deafness and dumbness—Mk. 9:25. Of dumbness and blindness—Mt. 12:22. Of curvature of the spine—Lu. 13:11. And of epilepsy—Mk. 1:26. Elsewhere such complaints are referred to as merely disease, and no suggestion is made that they were caused or complicated by the action of an evil spirit—Mt. 15:30; Mk. 7:32; Lu. 18:35. Sometimes possession and disease are even distinguished by different enumeration (Mt. 10:8; Mk. 1:32; Lu. 6:17–19; 7:21; 13:32).

*PUBLICAN. Gr. Telōnēs, a Tax Farmer. The Roman senate, as early as the II Punic War, began to farm the direct taxes and customs, including the duty on goods carried into and out of the cities, to capitalists who were to pay a given sum into the public treasury. These officers employed others to attend to the details of the work who were usually natives and frequently Jews. The word Telōnēs referred to the latter class. The method for collection was as follows: The taxes were lumped off at auction. The auctioneer was censor, and the buyer became one of the company, so sharing the profits. They made the most they could out of the bargain, which gave rise to gross abuses. As the Jews staid about paying taxes to Caesar, the calling was considered dishonorable. They practised extortion, as charged by John the

* APOSTLES.—Gr. Apostoloi, "To send on a Mission." Christ Himself was the Apostle of the Father.—John. 17:18; Heb. 3:1, 2.

Paul uses the Term in stating Various Commissions.—II Cor. 8:23; Phil. 2:25; Rom. 16:7.

But the Ordinary Application is to the Twelve.—Matthias was added in the place of Judas Iscariot. The name was given to the Twelve by Jesus—Lu. 6:13. A record of the group is found in—Mt. 10:2-4; Mk. 3:14-19; Lu. 6:13-16; Acts 1:13. The first appointment embraced Twelve, corresponding to the twelve tribes of Israel—Rev. 21:12, 14, afterwards 70 were sent forth (Lu. 10:1), indicating perhaps, prospectively, the broadening out of the commission, since the Jewish conception of mankind comprised 70 nations. But the term "Apostles" was not applied to the 70 in the technical sense. The development was gradual. (1) Called to be companions and followers of Jesus—Mk. 1:16-20; John 1:35-50. (2) Organized into a band of Twelve—Lu. 6:13-16. (3) Instructed in the kingdom. The Purpose threefold (1) That they might company with Him. (2) Witness His deeds, remember His words, and attest His Resurrection as disciples. (3) That they might go into all the world as His commissioners (Apostles)—Mk. 3:14; Mt. 28:19, 20. They wandered to and fro (Mt. 8:19, 20) and thus became detached from the world—John 17:16. The miracles were to prove to them the power of their leader—John 11:15. The Parables were to utilize their knowledge of nature and of human Nature—Mt. 13:51, 52. Half of them were in the training a trifle over 3 years. They were to become witnesses of Jesus, of His death and resurrection—Lu. 24:48; Acts 1:8. They were to preach the gospel to the world—Mt. 28:18-20; Mk. 16:15, 16; Lu. 24:45-47; Acts 2:41, 42. But they were to tarry in Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high—Lu. 24:49. Paul was not a member of the body of Twelve. He was an Independent apostle on a par with them—Acts 14:14, 14. Barnabas and James, the Lord's brother, are sometimes called apostles, probably in the more general sense of the term.

Signs and Qualifications of Apostles.—II Cor. 12:12. Must have seen Jesus and be able to testify to what they had seen and heard—John 15:27; Acts 1:21, 22; 22:14, 15; I Cor.

LIVES OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES.—Andrew—A fisherman of Bethsaida, and son of John—John 1:42. He was one of the first two who found the Messiah (John 1:41) and had been formerly a disciple of John the Baptist—John 1:35. He made for himself a good name by bringing his brother Simon; and was apparently broader in his feeling toward the Gentiles—John 12:2. But it is not clear that Andrew and Philip knew what to do with the problem of the Greeks.

Philip of Bethsaida, "the City of Andrew and Peter"—John 1:44. He was the first man to whom Jesus said "Follow me"—John 1:43. Christ found him, not he Christ. This may show that he had a retiring spirit. At any rate, in all four lists of the Twelve he stands fifth in order. John records three incidents in which Philip took a leading part. (1) He is consulted about feeding the multitude—John 6:5. (2) He shares with Andrew the honor of introducing the Greeks to Jesus—John 12:22. (3) He seeks for a vision of the Father—John 14:8. His answer to Nathaniel's question made him famous—John 1:46.

Bartholomew.—Bar-talmāi, Son of Talmāi. His narrow question, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" was instantly followed by fervid conviction. Our Lord pronounced him "an Israelite indeed, without Guile"—John 1:46-49. He was numbered with the Other Apostles after the Resurrection—John 21:2. As Bartholomew, nothing is recorded of him.

Thomas.—Known as the doubter. His character is greatly misunderstood. He was querulous and gloomy; generally disposed to look on the dark side. But though he fell into the depth of despair on account of our Lord's death, when he obtained the evidence he demanded, he leaped to the very summit of faith—John 20:24-28. The trial of his faith made it harder to endure, and Luke promotes him above Bartholomew and Matthew—Acts 1:13. Three incidents throw strong light upon his character: (1) Ready to follow Jesus to death—John 11:16. (2) Searching after the true way—John 14:5. (3) Reliance on sense rather than on faith—John 20:24-29. He was one of the seven who journeyed north to Galilee to meet the Risen Lord—John 21:2. Then again he was among the apostles, awaiting the power from on high—Acts 1:13. As it is with some of the other apostles, nothing is said in detail of his separate labors in the gospel.

James, Son of Alphaeus (The Little. See Mk. 15:40 marg.). Styled thus, probably on account of his stature. His mother was Mary, one of the few women who stood by the cross and visited the sepulchre—Mk. 16:1; John 19:25. Tradition says that he had been a tax-gatherer.

Thaddæus.—One of the Twelve, as given in Mt. 10:3; Mk. 3:18. He is probably to be identified with the Judas ("The Son of James") in Luke's lists—Lu. 6:16; Acts 1:13. In all four lists, Thaddæus, or Judas, comes next to Simon the Zealot, by which it seems he was either a brother or friend. Nothing is recorded of him except the question asked by him of Jesus, where it is said, "Not Iscariot?"—John 14:22. Simon Zealotes.—Called the Canaanite—Mt. 10:4; Mk. 3:18; Lu. 6:15; Acts 1:13.

Judas Iscariot.—The Man of Kerioth, a town in the south of Judæa. He was the only one of the Twelve who was not fruitful. 23 And ^a he that was sown upon the good ^b ground, this is he that heareth the ^c word, and ^c understandeth it; who verily beareth ^d fruit, and bringeth forth, some a hundred-fold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 Another ^e parable set he before them, saying, The ^f kingdom of ^f heaven is likened unto ^g a ^h man that ⁱ sowed good ⁱ seed in his ^j field: 25 but while men ^k slept, his ^k enemy came and sowed ^l tares also among the wheat, and went away. 26 But when the blade sprang up and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also. 27 And the ^m servants of the ⁿ householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy field? whence then hath it tares? 28 And he said unto them, ^o An enemy hath done this. And the ^p servants say unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and ^q gather them up? 29 But he saith, Nay; lest haply while ye gather up the tares, ye root up the ^r wheat with them. 30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather up first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but ^s gather the wheat into my ^t barn.

33 Another parable spake he unto them; ^f The kingdom of heaven is like unto ^g leaven, which a ^h woman took, and hid in ⁱ three ^j measures of ^k meal, till it was all leavened.

34 All these things spake Jēsus in parables unto the multitudes; and ^m without a parable spake he nothing unto them: 35 that ⁿ it might be fulfilled which was spoken ^o through the prophet, saying,

^p I will open my ^q mouth in parables; I will utter ^r things hidden from the ^s foundation ^t of the ^u world.

36 Then he left the ^v multitudes, and went into ^w the house: and his ^x disciples came unto him, saying, ^y Explain unto us the parable of the tares of the field. 37 And he answered and said, He that soweth the good seed is the ^z Son of man; 38 ^a and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are ment.—Herod the Great—Mt. 2:1; Archelaus—Mt. 2:22; Herod Antipas—Lu. 3:1; Mk. 6:14; Herodias—Mk. 6:17; her daughter Salome—Mk. 6:22; Philip, the first husband of Herodias—Mk. 6:17; Philip the Tetrarch. Cf. Trachonitis and Iturea—Lu. 3:1; Herod Agrippa I—Acts 12:1; Herod Agrippa II—Acts 25:13; Drusilla—Acts 24:24; Bernice—

Acts 25:13.

Name Herod applied to Three.—Only three of the family have the term Herod in the New Testament: Herod the Great, who slew the male children in Bethlehem—Mt. 2:16;
Herod Antipas, who beheaded John the Baptist—Mk. 6:14;
Herod Agrippa I, who slew James, the brother of John—
Acts 12:1.

Idumean Dynasty.—Antipas the Idumean ingratiated himself into the good graces of John Hyrcanus II, made use of his fears and his weaknesses, became useful to Julius Caesar, and finally his personal representative in the government.

Herod the Great.—Son of Antipater the Idumean. Born
a. c. 74 and died a. c. 4, being about 70 years old (Josephus, Ant. XVII, VI, D). He was a vassal king of Rome and a Greek in sympathy. His marriage with Mariamne, daughter of John Hyrcanus II, gave him throne more legitimacy with the Jews. But he had ten wives in all. Josephus tells the story of his splendor, his cruelty to his own family (putting to death Mariamne and her mother Alexandra, Mariamne's two sons, besides Antipater and many others). He managed to keep the friendship of Augustus Caesar, but lost the love of the Jews. He antagonized their customs and introduced many Hellenizing practices. The slaughter of the babes in Bethlehem (Mt. 2:13-18) was in perfect harmony with his character in Josephus. He would brook no rival and no interference with his plans. Message of the Wise Men "troubled" Herod (Mt. 2:3) about the succession to the throne. Hence his inquiry of the chief priests and scribes about the birth-place of the promised Messiah (2:4). His duplicitly with the Wise Men (2:7 f.) is in accord with his picture in Josephus.

Archelaus.—Elder son of Herod the Great by Malthace the Samaritan. He was the heir of Herod the Great by his last will. Was given only Judea, Samaria, and Idumea, and obtained the title of Ethnarch from Augustus with promise of king if he behaved properly. He was popularly called king.
He was the very worst of the sons of Herod living after the death of Antipater. Hence the dread of Joseph in Egypt—Mt. 2:22. He ruled only ten years, till a. d. 6, when he was deposed by the Emperor. His career is probably referred to by Jesus in the Parable of the Pounds—Lu. 19:12 f. When Jesus came to Jerusalem at 12 years of age (Lu. 2:42), he would probably hear talk of the recent downfall of Archelaus.

Herod Antipas.—Second son of Herod the Great by Malthace. He obtained, a. c. 4, Galilee and Peraea with the title of Tetrarch. Ruled till banished to Lyons in Gaul in a. d. 39.
The youth and most of the ministry of Jesus were spent in the territory of Herod Antipas. Yet he never saw Jesus till the trial of Jesus—Lu. 23:8. His court was at Tiberias, a city that Jesus avoided. Jesus knew that Herod would be hostile toward him, and warned his disciples against the leaven of Herod—Mk. 8:15. The Pharisees once reported that Herod was plotting to kill him, and Christ called him, "That fox"— Lu. 13:31 f. He feared the reports about Jesus, thinking that he was John the Baptist come to life again—Mt. 14:1 f.; Mk. 6:14; Lu. 9:7-9. He had imprisoned John for denouncing his adulterous marriage with Herodias—Mt. 14:3 f.; Mk. 6:17. Josephus adds a political motive for the arrest of John—Ant. XVIII, V. 2. He had divorced his wife, a daughter of Aretas, in order to marry Herodias, the wife of Herod Philip of Rome. Herodias was indeed the niece of this Philip (half-brother of Antipas). Both were close kin to Antipas. The shameful marriage outraged the Jews, and John's rebuke ultimately cost his head through the resentment of Herodias (Mk. 6:19), who used Herod Antipas's love for the dancing of her own daughter for that purpose—Mt. 14:6-12; Mk. 6:20-29. The jealousy of Herodias toward Agrippa I led to the banishment of Antipas and herself.

Philip of Rome.—Son of Herod the Great by Mariamne (Daughter of Simon, not the Maccabee). He lived in Rome and comes into the New Testament merely as the first husband of Herodias—Mk. 6:17.

Herodias.—She was a Maccabean in part, daughter of Aristobulus, son of Mariamne (daughter of Hyrcanus II, and wife of Herod the Great). Her mother was Bernice, daughter of Salome (Herod's sister). She is a sad specimen of the degenerate woman of the time. She probably deserted Philip for Antipas for ambition, and for ambition lost all at last. She never forgave John the Baptist (Mk. 6:19), and prostituted her own daughter to the public dance to get revenge on him—Mk. 6:24; Mt. 14:8.

Salome.—Daughter of Herodias by Herod Philip, her first husband. She is called Herodias also in some manuscripts in Mk. 6:22. She performed the disgraceful dance that won the head of John the Baptist on a platter—Mt. 14:8-11; Mk. 6:25-28. She married Philip Tetrarch of Trachonitis and later Aristobulus of Chalcis.

Philip of Trachonitis.—Son of Herod the Great by Cleopatra of Jerusalem. He obtained (s. c. 4) Trachonitis and Ituraea with the title of Tetrarch (Lu. 3:1), which he ruled till his death, A. D. 34. He was the best of Herod the Great's sons who succeeded him, and was free from ambition, cruelty, and lust. He founded Caesarea Philippi. Jesus made a journey into this region—Mt. 16:13; Mk. 8:27. Jesus withdrew to Bethsaida (Lu. 9:10); also on an earlier occasion, which was in Philip's Territory. He was here free from the jealousy of Herod Antipas.

Herod Agrippa I.—Son of Aristobulus, who was son of Mariamne the Maccabee and Herod the Great. His mother was Bernice, daughter of Salome (sister of Herod the Great). He was brought up in Rome as friend of Caligula, who, when he became emperor, made Agrippa King of the Tetrarchies of Philip and Lyranias (A. D. 38). On the banishment of Herod Antipas, in A. D. 39, he has Galilee and Peraea added to his realm. In A. D. 42 Claudius gives him also Judea and Samaria, so that for a brief period a Herod again is king of all Palestine. The death of James and imprisonment of Peter by Herod Agrippa belong to this period—Acts 12:1 ff. His shameful death at Caesarea in A. D. 44 was a fitting close to a disgraceful career—Acts 12:19-23. Cf. Josephus, Ant. xix, viii, 2.

Herod Agrippa II.—Son of Herod Agrippa I and Cypros. Was only 17 years old on death of his father in A. D. 44. Hence Claudius refused to give him his father's kingdom. Later made Tetrarch of Chalcis with oversight of the Temple in Jerusalem, and then received instead the Tetrarchies of Philip and Lyranias. Report had it that he lived unlawfully with his sister Bernice—Acts 25:13, 23; 26:30. He is called king in Acts 25:13, 26; 2, 30. He is on good terms with Festus, the Roman Procurator of Judaea—Acts 25:13-27. Paul commends his knowledge of Jewish customs (Acts 25:3), though he was a lover of Hellenism, like all the Herods. He supported Rome during the Jewish war. His interest in Paul was at first indifferent (Acts 25:22); was never great (Acts 26:28), though he saw clearly that Paul was innocent of any crime—Acts 26:32. He died about A. D. 100, the last of the Herods.

Bernice.—Eldest daughter of Agrippa I. She had a varied career as wife of her uncle, Herod of Chalcis, and of Polemon, King of Cilicia; as paramour of her brother Agrippa and of Titus the Roman Emperor. She only appears once in New Testament History, but is mentioned three times (Acts 25:13, 23; 26:30) in connection with her brother Agrippa. She attracted notice by her charms.

Drusilla.—Youngest of the daughters of Agrippa I. She married first Azizus, King of Emesa, but left him for Felix, who married her. She is with him while he is Procurator of Judaea, and heard Paul preach (Acts 24:24), when Paul made him tremble. She probably perished in an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, in the reign of Titus, together with her son, by Felix, named Agrippa.

* SANHEDRIN. Gr. Sanhedrion. The Jews' Supreme Council at the Time of Jesus.—Lu. 22:66. It consisted of 71 Members, according to Jewish tradition, founded on the 70 Elders appointed by Moses and including Moses—Num. 11:16. But Moses' 70 were merely temporary, no traces of them being found in Deut. 17:8-11, nor under Joshua, the Judges, and the Kings. The fact that Jehoshaphat called together a sort of Supreme Court favors this—II Chr. 19 Elders are also mentioned in Ezra 5:5; 6:7; 10:8, but the also, passed away. The earliest mention of the Sanhedrin found in II Macc. 1:10; 4:44; 11:27. This puts its origin up to the Greek supremacy. The Sanhedrin was composed of Chief Priests, Scribes and Elders, presided over by an hereditary High Priest—Mt. 26:57; John 11:47-49. Although it one head was recognized by the Roman authorities the judgment of the aged High Priests was sought by the Jewish officers—John 18:12-14. Their power was recognized in all except condemning to death—John 18:28-31. They had lost their power shortly before the death of Jesus. It ranged from minute contempt (Mt. 5:22) to blasphemy of Jehovah—Mk. 14:61-63. The Sanhedrin plotted the death of Jesus—

Mt. 26:14-15; Mk. 14:10, 11; Lu. 22:3-5; John 11:47-53.
They caused the arrest of Jesus—John 18:2, 3. They tried Jesus in order to kill him, not to learn of His guilt or innocence—Mt. 26:59, 60; Mk. 14:55, 56. It was their insistence that caused the death of Jesus—John 18:29, 30. This council thrust itself between the apostles and the people—Acts 4:15-17. The Sadducees brought the apostles before the Sanhedrin—Acts 4:1-7; 5:17, 18. Peter defies them—Acts

5:29-32. Had Stephen arrested and tried—Acts 6:12, 13; 7:1. Saul acted under the authority of the Sanhedrin in his successful persecution of the disciples—Acts 9:2, 14; 26:12.
It was a constant vexation to Paul—Acts 22:30; 23:1, 6, 15, 20, 28; 24:20; 25:12. Finally forcing him to Rome—Acts
25:9-12; for their power extended to Jews of foreign cities—Acts 9:2. Paul skillfully divided the Sanhedrin over his case—Acts 23:6-10. With the destruction of Jerusalem the Sanhedrin was abolished.

* MARK: Names.—John Mark—Acts 12:12, 25; 15:37. The Jewish name John alone—John 13:5, 13. The Roman name Mark alone—Acts 15:39; Col. 4:10; Philemon 24; I Pet. 5:13; II Tim. 4:11. Cf. Jewish and Roman names combined in Saul Paul.

Home.—Jerusalem and mother's name Mary—Acts 12:12, 25. This home the place where many Disciples gathered for Prayer—Acts 12:12 ff.

Cousin of Barnabas.—Col. 4:10, and so probably a native of Cyprus, and possibly also a Levite like Barnabas (if father a brother of Barnabas). Cf. Acts 3:36.

Uncertain whether Personal Follower of Jesus.—Some consider him the young man mentioned in Mk. 14:51 f. This is quite possible if the "upper room" was in his mother's house—Mk. 14:15. Cf. Acts 12:12. But certainly a Christian when name first mentioned in Acts.

Goes to Antioch with Barnabas and Saul.—Acts 12:25. Probably invited by Barnabas, the leader of the new work among the Greeks at Antioch. As a cousin of Barnabas, and probably a Hellenistic Jew, he would be interested in the new developments there.

Assistant to Barnabas and Saul.—Acts 13:5. Either subordinate or possibly "synagogue minister" (Chase, Hastings' Bible Dictionary).

Leaves Paul and Barnabas at Perga.—Acts 13:13. Returns to Jerusalem—Acts 13:13. Refused by Paul as companion for Second Missionary Tour—Acts 15:37 f. Follows Barnabas to Cyprus—Acts 37:39. Fellow-worker of Paul in Rome—Philemon 24. Commended by Paul to the Colossians—

Col. 4:10. With Peter in Babylon (Rome?)—I Pet. 5:13. Desired by Paul in last imprisonment along with Timothy—II Tim. 4:11.

Peter's Interpreter.—So Papias as quoted in Eusebius (H. E. iii. 39). Cf. Swete on Mark, p. xviii. This old tradition in harmony with association with Peter (I Pet. 5:13) and Peter's expressed wish to help the readers of his second Epistle (II Pet. 1:15) to "be able to call these things to remembrance" after his decease. Character of the Gospel of Mark in harmony also with story of Papias that Mark, as Peter's interpreter, wrote down accurately what he remembered of the Words and Deeds of Jesus.

GOSPEL OF MARK: Date of the Gospel of Mark.—The general opinion among modern students of the Synoptic Problem is that the Gospel of Mark is a genuine Work and the earliest of the Four Gospels. Swete, p. xxxv, thinks that it cannot be later than a. d. 70. It may indeed quite possibly be between 55 and 60 a. d.

Place of Writing.—This is not known, but is usually supposed to be Rome. We have seen Mark in Rome with Paul (Philemon 24) and probably with Peter (I Pet. 5:13). But one cannot be positive when nothing is told.

Characteristics of the Gospel of Mark.—For Romans especially. This is the early tradition, and it is supported by the probable fact that it was written in Rome. There is also a distinct absence of peculiar Jewish features such as are seen in the Gospel of Matthew. No Jewish genealogy occurs here.

Humanity of Jesus accented.—This Gospel is not therefore a theological treatise after the order of Matthew, though the conception of Christ is the same. He is "Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (Mk. 1:1), whose Gospel is here narrated. He is divine as well as human.

Beginning of Christ's Gospel, not of His Life.—Mk. 1:1. Mark does not narrate the birth and childhood of Jesus. He even skips the first year of His ministry after His baptism. Possibly a year (according to John's gospel) comes in between verse 13 and 14 in Chap. 1.

Mainly the Galilean Gospel.—1:14-9:50, counting the period of withdrawal into regions around Galilee.

Climax in Jerusalem during the Last Passover.—Chaps. 11-16. Galilee and Jerusalem, the two foci of Christ's Ministry, according to Mark. This is precisely what Peter does in his sketch of Christ's work in His early apostolic preaching. The work and death of Christ (and resurrection) the main elements in the earliest preaching.

Deeds of Jesus rather than His Words.—Hence the miracles are numerous in Mark. Same number (18) as that in Matthew and only 20 in Luke. But Mark has only 4 Parables, while Matthew has 15. The sayings of Christ seem to have been first collected into a group of Logia. Mark represents the crisp record of His deeds.

Person of Christ in Action.—Thus he teaches the truth about Jesus. There is rapid movement, power, results. Jesus is shown to be the Son of God, with divine power. The Greek adverb εὐθύς (straightway) occurs forty-one times in Mark. There are 151 "historic presents" in Mark, while only 78 in Matthew, and not over 6 in Luke (list of Westcott and Hort). Cf. Hawkins, Horae Synopticae, p. 114 ff. Energy is the word that best describes Mark's narratives. The ancients compared Mark's Gospel to the lion.

Vividness of Detail.—There are constant changes of tense in Mark, due to vividness of conception. Cf. 5:15 ff.; 6:14 ff. &c. As the reporter of Peter's descriptions there are naturally marks of an eye-witness—7:17; 10:17; 12:41. These vivid details come out particularly in story of the demoniac in the rocks (Mk. 5:1-20) where many items are alone in Mark. This pictorial autoptic character of the Gospel is in harmony with notion of its early date and Petrine influence. Mark tells of the gestures of Jesus (9:36), looks of Jesus (5:32; 6:6, &c.), love for the young ruler and his look of despondency (10:21 f.), &c. After Peter's denial these details are fewer. The matters that would tend to recall Peter are usually absent from the Gospel.

Emotions of Jesus.—Sternness (1:43), Anger (3:5), Wonder (6:6), Indignation (10:14), Amazement in the Garden of Gethsemane (14:33 f.).

Deity of Christ.—Yet withal no Gospel gives a stronger impression of the deity of Jesus, not even John's Gospel. This comes out in the claims of Jesus as Lord of the Sabbath

(2:28), with power to forgive sins (2:5, 10), with power and glory (14:62), &c.

Pauline Character.—Pfleiderer holds that this Gospel represents the Pauline gospel of grace for all men, both Gentile and Jew. This is true, but it is also true of every book in the New Testament. They are all Pauline in that sense, that Paul rightly interpreted the mind of Christ on the point of Gentile freedom.

Independent Matter in Mark.—There are only some eighty verses (Swete, Comm., p. lxviii.) in Mark not in the Synoptic Gospels. But in the matters reported by him, brief as his Gospel is, he is usually fuller than the other Gospels, another sign of Peter's descriptive powers as reported by Mark. Chief matters in Mark alone occur in 3:20 f.; 4:26-29; 7:31-37; 8:22-26; 14:51 ff.

Chronological Order.—So almost uniformly in this Gospel as in Luke. But his Gospel is no more a history than the others are.

Explanation by Mark.—He gives the Aramaic a few times and then translates into Greek as in 5:41; 7:11, 34; &c. Sometimes he explains the conduct of Christ as in 5:30; 8:19. He uses rather more Latin words than the other Gospels, like denarius, legion, centurion, &c.

Quotations from the Old Testament.—There are 67 references in Mark to the Old Testament, 23 merely verbal allusions and only 7 peculiar to Mark. Mark's more formal quotations are found in 1:2, 3; 4:12, 32; 7:6, 7, 10; 8:18; 9:48; 10:4, 6, 7, 8, 19, 27; 11:9; 12:2, 10, 11, 19, 31, 36; 13:12, 14, 19, 24, 26; 14:27, 34, 62.

Special Phrases.—Besides the vivid terms and adverbs in Mark already mentioned, a few others call for mention. Constant use of the first person as in 4:89; 5:8, 9, 12; 6:2, &c. He uses many diminutives. It is in the vernacular Greek of the time, and the conversational style is apparent all through the book. The vocabulary is not peculiar at all, though a few unusual words occur as in 9:47.

Gospel for Children.—As the earliest and simplest Gospel, Mark is the favorite of the children, and is best adapted for them. Around this simple objective picture of Jesus at work among men, it is easy to group the other Gospels (Matthew, Luke and John).

Teaching of Mark.—It is only necessary to say that the picture of Jesus is at the bottom the same in Mark that we find elsewhere. He gave his life a ransom for men (10:45; 14:24). His power is compassionate and beneficial, not destructive. Jesus is not merely the Great Teacher, but the Great Worker. His miracles are acted parables and his deeds speak louder than any words.

* HELL.—Gr. Gehenna, "Valley of Hinnom." From Heb. Gē, "Valley," and "Hinnom," name of the owner. (West of Jerusalem, where noxious things were burned up.) Used figuratively as name or place of everlasting punishment. Distinct from Hades, which is the place or state of all departed souls, and corresponds to Sheol in Old Testament. The expression "Lowest Sheol" in Old Testament is indicative of Hell.

ligious sect. This matter is not clear. But certainly they represent those under Roman rule who wished for a restoration of the rule of the Herods, probably under Herod Antipas. Hence in Galilee (Mk. 3:6) Jesus warned the disciples against the heaven of Herod Antipas (Mk. 8:15), but this need not have been either that of the Pharisees or of the Sadducees (Mt. 16:6). A distinction seems to be drawn between the Herodians and both Pharisees and Sadducees in—Mt. 22:15 f., 23; Mk. 12:13, 18; Lu. 20:20, 27. As in Mk. 3:6, so here they join with the Pharisees in attacking Jesus about tribute to Cæsar. As advocates of the dynasty of Herod they opposed paying taxes to Rome.

Grecian, or Greek-speaking Jews.—In Acts 6:1, a distinction is made between the Christian Jews who belonged to the Dispersion and spoke Greek (Hellenists) and the Christian Jews who were Palestinians and spoke Aramaic (Hebrews). The term Hellenist occurs also in Acts 9:29 for Jews of the Dispersion now in Jerusalem, while in Acts 11:20 the American Standard Version correctly reads "Greeks also," not Jews at all. For Greek in the usual, non-Jewish sense see Acts 16:1; 18:4; Rom. 1:14, 16; 10:12; John 12:20; Gal. 3:28.

*LUKE: Name.—Not the same as Lucius in Acts 13:1. Probably an abbreviated pet name from Lucanus, a common custom of the time with many names. The name occurs only three times in the New Testament. (Philemon 24, Col. 4:14; II Tim. 4:11.)

Birthplace.—Absolutely unknown. Antioch in Syria, Antioch in Pisidia, Philippi in Macedonia have all been suggested.

Home.—Luke lived in Philippi apparently, from Paul's first visit there (Acts 16:12; 17:1) till Paul's return by Philippi on his way to Jerusalem during the third tour (Acts 20:5 f.). This is apparent from the use of "we" and "they." It is possible indeed that Luke had come from Macedonia to Troas and that his visit to Paul's vision recorded in Acts 16:10 ff. Luke shows unusual interest in Philippi, manifesting local pride in its claim to "first" as opposed to Amphipolis (Acts 16:12).

Family.—Also unknown, unless Titus is his brother. Curiously, neither Luke nor Titus are mentioned in Acts. Luke is not mentioned because he wrote the book. Why not Titus? Cf. II Cor. 12:18. Paul mentions "the brother" in connection with Titus where he seems to mean "his brother."

A. Souter (Hastings' D. B.) considers this passage and II Cor. 8:18 proof that Luke is this brother (cf. Acts above). If so, we have this interesting detail.

Gentile.—Titus was a Greek (Gal. 2:3). If Luke was his brother, he would be, of course, Greek also. The failure to mention Luke in the list of Jewish brethren (Col. 4:10 f.), putting him apart with Greek names in Col. 4:14 f., indicates that he was not a Jew. Luke's Greek style (Lu. 1:1–4), when un-influenced by his Aramaic or Jewish sources, corroborates this idea.

Man of Culture.—His two books (Gospel and Acts) show him to be a man of education. His introduction to his Gospel is worthy of any historian. He has the historian's skill in the use of his material.

Physician.—Expressly called by Paul (Col. 4:14) "Luke, the beloved physician." Many current medical terms in both Gospel and Acts. Cf. Hobart, "The Medical Language of Luke."

Companion of Paul.—He was with Paul at Troas and Philippi during Second Missionary Tour—Acts 16:10–40. He joins Paul again at Philippi on his third tour en route to Jerusalem (Acts 20:7) and is with him at Jerusalem, Caesarea, voyage to Rome (Acts 20-28). If II Cor. 8:18 and 12:18 refer to Luke, he was in Macedonia with Paul also when in Macedonia during the third tour on his way from Ephesus to Corinth via Macedonia. Luke was with Paul most of the first imprisonment in Rome—Phil. 24; Col. 1:14. He was with him again in the Second Imprisonment—II Tim. 4:11.

Not a Personal Disciple of Jesus.—Some have supposed that he was one of the "Seventy" sent out by Jesus, others have thought him one of the two disciples to whom Jesus appeared on the way to Emmaus; others have thought that he was one of the Greeks who came to see Jesus (John 12:20).
 But there is no support for any of these ideas. Others think that he was led to Christ by Paul and that he was Paul's physician when he was taken sick in Galatia (Gal. 4:13). The implication in Lu. 1:1-4 is that Luke did not know Jesus personally.

Legend that he was a Painter.—That is possible, but no real proof of it exists. He has great literary skill at any rate.

Harnack's Admission about Luke.—It is now admitted by Harnack that Luke wrote both Gospel and Acts. This is a victory for solid interpretation. Cf. Harnack, "Luke the Physician;" Ramsay, "Luke the Physician."

Same Author for Gospel and Acts.—This is plain from Lu.
 1:1-4 and Acts 1:1, as well as from the general style of both books. The vocabulary is largely the same.

Luke a Reliable Historian.—Sir W. M. Ramsay's various books on Luke and Paul have proven the great value of Luke as an historian. He has been shown by discoveries to be right on various items where once he seemed to stand alone—such as the proconsul of Cyprus, the politarchs of Thessalonica, the "First" man of Melita, &c.

Explanation of Method of Work.—In his introduction to his Gospel (1:1-4) he explains his use of his materials. He sought information from oral and written sources. He wished first-hand testimony (eye-witness) whenever he could get it. He tested it all himself, put it in order, and sought to be accurate.

Main Known Sources.—It seems clear that Luke had the Gospel of Mark among his written sources. He seems to have had a book of Logia or Sayings of Jesus, and also the present Matthew. Then he apparently had another source different from both of them. The inference is from his own words that he had a rather large amount of material in hand.

Date of Luke's Gospel.—This matter is not perfectly clear, though scholars see more nearly together about it now. It must come after Mark and the Logia. It must come before the Acts. If Acts was written while Luke was in Rome during the first imprisonment, the conclusion would be easy.
 That is the most natural meaning of Luke's words in Acts 28:30. He closes Acts after two years in Rome because the events had gone no further. The other view makes Luke's close of Acts merely an artistic one. He had it in mind to bring Paul to Rome. If the first view is correct, the Gospel was written during the two years with Paul in Cæsarea. Luke then had leisure to make his researches (in Palestine) about the life of Jesus. He would also have Paul's help. In that case the Gospel would come before A.D. 60. Otherwise it may come as late as 80 A.D. The earlier date is on the whole the most probable.

Characteristics of Luke's Gospel.—Reason for writing given —1:1-4. It is the historical ground that many others had written about Jesus. He wishes to give Theophilus (cf. Acts also) the benefit of his researches into the life of Jesus. Theophilus is probably a real character, a man of some importance.

Editorial Notes.—A. Wright (St. Luke's Gospel in Greek, Art. Luke—Hastings' D. B.) finds many editorial comments in Luke. This is natural in a true historian who is not a mere copyist in the use of his material. There is evidence of much reflection and theological interpretation in Luke as in Matthew and John.

Doctrinal Tendency.—Luke's Gospel is not an objective realistic setting forth of the facts of the life of Christ as in Mark. The facts are there, but they are interpreted. This is in truth a higher form of history. There is no perversion of the facts to advance the cause of Paul against Peter as Baur charged.

Pauline Influence.—The book does correspond in theological outlook with that of Paul, as seen in his Epistles. Luke was greatly indebted to Paul (cf. Mk. also). There is nothing hostile to Peter in the Gospel, and the Gospel has many stern judgments of the Jews; cf. Plummer, Comm. p. 26. The Gospel is not a theological polemic; 101 words occur only in Luke and Paul in the New Testament.

Historical Allusions.—The Gospel (Acts more so) has reference to the general history of the times as one would expect from a man of the Greek world like Luke. Cf. Luke 3: ff., where he mentions the imperial and provincial, as well as the ecclesiastical, rulers of the time when John the Baptist began his work. Cf. 13:1 ff. for an incident of the rule of Pontius Pilate.

Universal Outlook.—As a Greek Christian, familiar with Paul's work in the Roman Empire and his plans for the evangelization of the Roman world, Luke naturally shows sympathy with the wider aspects of the work of Christ. His Gospel is for the Gentiles as well as for the Jews. He traces the genealogy of Christ back to Adam. He seems to give the real lineage of Jesus through his mother Mary. He notes that Jesus is enrolled along with Joseph and Mary according to the regulations of the Roman emperor Augustus. He records the song of peace for men of good will at the birth of Jesus (Lu. 2:14).

Infancy of Jesus from Mary's Point of View.—As Matthew gives the birth of Jesus from the standpoint of Joseph in harmony with the Jewish character of his Gospel, so Luke records the universal interest of humanity in the birth of Jesus as seen in the experience of Mary. The source of Luke's information was probably oral and must have come ultimately from Mary herself, but Luke probably obtained the story from a friend of Mary.

First Christian Hymnologist.—Thus Farrar (Messages of the Books) aptly describes Luke's Hymns of the Nativity, Songs of Elisabeth, Mary, Zacharias. They bear the stamp of genuineness in the strongly marked Semitic tone and style. Luke was himself a Greek, but he has preserved the Hebrew spirit of the original source. Chaps. 1 and 2 differ greatly in style from the introduction (1:1-4) and from the rest of the Gospel.

Arrangement chronological.—So in the main as he explained in 1:3; many of the incidents recorded have no special sequence, and Luke may not have known the real chronological order. Cf. Plummer, Comm. p. 37. This was Luke's method in the Acts and strengthens the opinion that he followed the same method in the Gospel.

Series of Pictures.—In the development of his narrative Luke shows much artistic skill. Each incident has a setting more or less distinct. The circumstances, time and place are roughly sketched. Usually the time element is very vague: as about that time, at that very hour, &c. But each incident, miracle or parable is treated as a whole. Sometimes no connection in the series is indicated.

Luke's Special Contribution.—The largest part of the Gospel (9:51-19: 27, the last six months of the ministry of Christ) belongs to the period where we have very little in the other Gospels. Matthew has two chapters (19 and 20), Mark one (10), while John has more (7-11), but matter pertaining to the Jerusalem ministry and different from Luke's account. A good deal of Luke's material is repetition in various details of sayings recorded by Matthew and Mark in the Galilean ministry; and some incidents are parallel. Some scholars think that Luke has here grouped together what really belongs to the Galilean period. It is difficult to think of Luke's doing that. Repetition is common for a teacher. Like teaching also has like results, as every popular preacher knows. Hence Luke has a source for this section different from Mark or the Logia.

Marcion's Use of Luke.—Marcion built his heretical system partly upon Luke's Gospel. He began with Chap. 4 and omitted all portions that did not coincide with his dogmatic views. He was a dogmatic destructive critic of Luke.

Tolerant in Tone.—Luke's breadth of sympathy is revealed in his recording Christ's rebuke of John for his narrowness of spirit (9:49 f.), in the rebuke of the bitterness of John and James toward the Samaritans (9:51-56), in the story of the Good Samaritan (10:30-37), in the gratitude of the Samaritan leper (17:11-19). Luke was truly catholic in spirit.

Gospel of Sympathy.—This appears in a number of ways. The story of the Rich Man and Lazarus (16:19-31) has even led to the charge that Luke was hostile to men of wealth. But this is unjust and a false interpretation. The Pharisees were indignant at the story of the Unjust Steward (16:14), because they loved money greatly. But Luke does present Jesus as the friend of the poor, the sick and the sinful. Jesus here in immortal parables (ch. 15) justifies his work among publicans and sinners. He is not ashamed, according to Luke, to receive the worship of a sinful woman and to cleanse her (7:36-50), but she is not Mary Magdalene, not Mary of Bethany. Luke (8:2) records the work of a group of noble women for Jesus. He mentions more miracles (20) than any other Gospel and more Sabbath cures also. Only six of his miracles are peculiar to Luke. As a physician this is natural, as is his frequent use of medical terms. The gentleness of Christ comes out well in Luke. Cf. II Cor. 10:1 f.

Praying of Jesus accented.—This done seven times in Luke when not recorded elsewhere. Thus at His baptism (3:21), collision with the Rulers (5:16), choice of the Apostles (6:12), foretelling His death (9:18), the Transfiguration (19:29) before Teaching the Model Prayer (11:1), on the Cross (23:34, 46). He alone gives some of the Parables about Prayer, like the Friend at Midnight (11:5-13), Unrighteous Judge (18:1-6), Pharisee and Publican (18:11-13). Cf. Plummer, Comm. p. 45 f.

Parables.—Luke has several groups of parables not in Matthew. So the three about the feast (14), the three about Publicans and Pharisees (15), two about riches (16), two about prayer (18). In Matthew the parables are usually concerned with the growth, expansion and communication of the Messianic reign. In Luke the parables of Jesus deal chiefly with the personal aspects of religion. There are twenty-three parables in Luke and all but five are peculiar to him. See "Parables of Jesus," Lu. 2:21.

Versatility.—Luke has the finest literary style and flavor of any of the Gospels, yet he shows most acquaintance with Aramaic sources and the Septuagint. He can be as free from Hebraisms as Plutarch. He has a rich and varied vocabulary, using some seven hundred words in the Gospel and Acts that do not occur elsewhere in the New Testament. Yet he reveals many times, in the Gospel in particular, his Aramaic or Hebrew sources by the idioms which his Greek contains.

Contrasts.—In Luke we have a wide range and many sharp contrasts. See the Publicans and Pharisees in 15, the Rich Man and Lazarus in 16, &c.

Old Testament Quotations.—The chief quotations from the Old Testament are contained in 1:17, 37, 46 f., 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 68, 69, 71, 76, 78, 79; 2:23 f.; 3:4-6; 4:4, 8, 10 f., 12, 18 f.; 6:21; 7:27; 8:10; 10:25; 12:53; 18:20; 19:38, 46; 20:9, 17, 28, 42 f.; 21:20, 22, 25 f., 27; 22:67, 69; 23:46. It will be observed that nearly half of these quotations occur in Chapter 1, the songs of Mary and Zacharias. See p. 1747.

Special Phrases.—Luke is fond of the expression "and it came to pass." So he often uses phrases like "at that very hour." The word "favor," "grace" or "gift" is frequent in Luke as are "Saviour" and "Salvation." It is the longest of the Gospels and the richest in the human side of the Beauty of the Book.—Renan as a critic of style called it the most beautiful book in the world.

Relation to Acts.—It is really Part I of Luke's account of the Origin of Christianity. Acts constitutes Part II (Acts 1:1). See "Article on Acts," Acts 1:1.

Teaching.—The Doctrines of Luke have already been sufficiently indicated. He presents a Universal Gospel of grace in full harmony with the exposition of Paul and indeed of Jesus as presented by Matthew and Mark.

used in the New Testament to describe the supernatural works of Christ on earth the three most usual are applied also to those wrought by His Apostles, viz. (1) teras, A.V. wonder (always); (2) semeion, A.V. sign miracle (esp. in St. John), etc.; (3) dynamis, A.V. power, miracle (esp. in Acts and Epistles), etc.; (1) Teras (i.e. 'wonder,' 'portent,' describes a miracle's startling effect, and is always accompanied by another of these words, esp. by semeion, to indicate the moral intention, the end and purpose of the wonder (e.g. in A.V. 'wonders and signs,' Acts 2:22). (2) Semeion, i.e. 'a sign' describes a miracle as ordained by God to be a mark whereby to identify the Messiah, an attestation of His teaching, an earnest of the blessings He brought, a specimen of God's methods for bringing these blessings home to man, as well as a type (or 'parable in action') of His spiritual Gifts. (3) Dynamis, i.e. 'power' (so rendered in A.V., also, generally in plural, 'mighty works'), describes a miracle as a 'new and higher force,' or power of the world to come (Heb. 6:5), entered upon and working in this world; an 'outcoming of the greatness' (megaleia, A.V. 'great things,' Lu. 1:49; Acts 2:1), of God's power and glory inherent in Christ, and lent to His witnesses and ambassadors.

"Miracles are also described at (4) eudoxa, A.V. 'glorious things,' Lu. 13:17, etc., i.e. as manifestations of the glory of God, the Father and Son; (5) paradoxa (A.V. 'strange things'; cp. 'new thing,' Num. 16:30), i.e. as beyond human imagination, amazing (cp. Lu. 5:26); and as (6) thaumasia, A.V. 'wonderful' (Mt. 21:15; cp. Mt. 9:8), i.e. astonishing occurrences unprecedented in human experience (cp. Mt. 9:33), and (like paradoxa) ascribable to God only."—TRENCH.

"PARABLE is the Greek word parabole, which means juxtaposition, and so a comparison of objects, to show a certain likeness or similitude between them. The Jewish method of teaching by parables was apparently adopted by our Lord when the Jews had rejected His direct teaching (Mt. 13:13); but also out of compassionate consideration for the infirmities of the listeners (cp. II Cor. 8:12). Proposed as a spiritual riddle to call the spiritual perceptions into exercise, the Parable—either attracted, interested, provoked inquiry, and thus sowed seed in the memory for future development by Christ Himself or by the Holy Ghost (cp. John 14:26); or left the self-righteous and obdurate self-condemned to spiritual blindness (John 9:30-41; 12:48). Thus the parable suited the audience, and 'found out the willing hearers and led them on'; like the Shechinah (Ex. 14:20), it was light and guidance to God's children, but darkness and a hindrance to His opponents.—Mk. 4:10-13, 33, 34; cp. John 3:19; 7:17; 8:43."

"CHRIST'S PARABLES illustrate the nature and principles of the Gospel Dispensation (the Mysteries, i.e. revealed secrets of the Kingdom of Heaven). They have been divided into three groups, according to the part of His Ministry in which they were delivered—viz.:

1. The earliest—Mt. 13; Mk. 4. Illustrations from common facts of Nature.
2. Between the mission of the Seventy and His last journey to Jerusalem. Illustrations of family and social life.
3. Immediately before and after His triumphal entry into Jerusalem. In answer to questions, cavils, etc."

HIS KINGDOM.—"It is only when we take the fourfold narrative in its entirety that we begin to catch sight of the satisfying and convincing fullness of the idea of the kingdom of heaven. This idea underlies the whole Gospel of John. In the Synoptic Gospels we have the conditions of entrance into the kingdom, a childlike spirit, faith, repentance, and obedience—Mt. 18:3; 9:22; 5:20; Lu. 13:3. In John we have the spiritual birth by which alone those conditions are made possible—John 3:5. In the Synoptics we have the laws of the kingdom—Mt. 5–7. In John we have the new life in which alone those laws can be fulfilled—John 6:22–65. In the Synoptics we have the parables and pictures of the kingdom—Mt. 13, etc. In John we have the inmost sense of those parables, spoken directly to the soul, in words of which Christ Himself says 'they are spirit, and they are life.' In the Synoptics we have the new order of human society in the imitation by the disciples of Christ's obedience to the will of God—Mt. 12:50. In John we have the organizing principles

Not to fall, amid Temptations, is Victory and Joy.—Jas. 1:2, 12. It is right to overcome Error.—Heb. 3:12-15; II Pet. 3:17. 12 And he said to him also that had bidden him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, nor thy kinsmen, nor rich neighbors; lest haply they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee. 13 But when thou makest a feast, bid the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind: 14 and thou shalt be blessed; because they have not wherewith to recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed in the resurrection of the just.

The first said unto him, I have bought a field, and I must needs go out and see it; I pray thee have me excused. 19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them; I pray thee have me excused. 20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come. 21 And the servant came, and told his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor and maimed and blind and lame. 22 And the servant said, Lord, what thou didst command is done, and yet there is room. 23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and constrain them to come in, that my house may be filled. 24 For I say unto you, that none of those 35 ^a And it came to pass, ^b as he drew nigh unto ^c Jēr^l-i-chō, a certain ^d blind man sat by the way side ^e begging: 36 and hearing a multitude going by, he inquired what this meant. 37 And they told him, that Jē-sūs of ^f Nāzā-rēth passeth by. 38 And he ^g cried, saying, Jē-sūs, thou ^h son of ⁱ David, have ^j mercy on me. 39 And they that went before ^k rebuked him, that he should hold his ^l peace: but he cried out the more a great deal, Thou son of David, have mercy on me. 40 And Jē-sūs stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, 41 What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? Thou knewest that I am an austere man, taking up that which I laid not down, and reaping that which I did not sow; 23 then wherefore gavest thou not my money into the bank, and I at my coming should have required it with interest? 24 And he said unto them that stood by, Take away from him the pound, and give it unto him that hath the ten pounds. 25 And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds. 26 I say unto you, that unto every one that hath shall be given; but from him that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken away from him. 27 But these mine enemies, that would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

* JOHN THE EVANGELIST: Life.—Son of Zebedee—Mt. 4:21. Mother, Salome—Mt. 17:56; Mk. 15:40. Home probably originally Bethsaida—John 1:44. In fishing business with father and brother James at Capernaum—Mt. 4:21. Home in Jerusalem also—John 19:27. Acquainted with family of Annas—John 18:13. Not very poor; had hired servants—Mk. 1:20. Cf. possible reference to his mother in Lu. 8:3. Possibly younger than brother James—Mt. 4:21; 10:2. Disciple of John the Baptist in all probability—John 1:40. Mentions name of Andrew and implies that the other disciple of John is himself. Probably this is one of the two disciples who first followed Jesus—John 1:35 f. Probably led brother James to Christ—John 1:41. This is not clearly stated, but probable. One of the four fishermen later called to personal service—Mt. 4:21 f. Belongs to the first of the three groups of the Apostles—Mt. 10:2 f.; Mk. 3:16 f.; Lu. 5:14 f.; Acts 1:13 f. One of the minor circle of three present at the raising of Jairus's daughter (Mk. 5:37), the Transfiguration (Lu. 9:28), the agony in Gethsemane (Mk. 14:33). Ambitious for position—Mt. 19:20. Willing for baptism of blood in ignorance of it—Mt. 20:22. Had no rabbinical education—Acts 4:13. Nicknamed Boanerges along with James (Sons of thunder)—Mk. 3:17. Proof of vehemence of nature: Vindictive toward the Samaritans—Lu. 9:51. Shows spirit of narrowness toward other workers for Christ—Mk. 9:38. Possibly kin to the Bethany family—John chap. 11. Messenger with Peter to prepare for the last Passover—Lu. 22:8. Had post of honor at the meal, reclining next to Christ—John 13:25. Favorite term for himself in the Gospel is "the disciple whom Jesus loved"—John 13:23; 19:26; 20:2; 21:7, 20. Asked Jesus who the betrayer was—John 13:25. One of the three in search for Christ in Gethsemane—Mt. 26:37. Entered the court of the high priest at the trial of Jesus—John 18:15. Alone of the Apostles; also stood by the Cross—John 19:26.

Honored by Jesus with care of His Mother—John 19:27. Saw proof of the death of Jesus and of His real humanity—John 19:35. Visits tomb of Jesus with Peter—John 20:4. Recognizes Jesus by Sea of Galilee—John 21:7. Peter misunderstands Christ's remark about John's living long—John 2:21. With Peter in worship in the Temple after the coming of the Holy Spirit—Acts 3:1. Shows boldness before the Sanhedrin—Acts 4:13. Receives Samaritan Christians as brethren (cf. wishing to call down fire before)—Acts 8:14. Escapes death when his brother James is slain—Acts 12:2. One of the chief figures in the Jerusalem conference, and gives Paul the right hand of fellowship and approval in his work—Gal. 2:9. Lived to old age—I John 2:1, 18. Travels much—III John 10. Banished to Patmos—Rev. 1:9. Interest in the Seven Churches of Asia (Rev. 1:11) suggests previous residence in Ephesus in harmony with tradition. Much more known about John in the Gospels and Acts where the twelve as a whole are mentioned. Tradition adds much more. Irenaeus says expressly that John lived till the time of Trajan, who reigned 98–117. John is a link between the first and third generations of Christians.

Character.—Marked by energy, love, elevation, and spiritual insight. Lived long and reflected profoundly on the great aspects of Christ and Christianity. Probably a celibate. Known as John the Theologian, John the Eagle.

GOSPEL OF JOHN: Authorship.—The writer refers to himself as the disciple whom Jesus loved and never mentions his name. Cf. Luke's "we" sections in Acts. The writer was a Jew, lived in Jerusalem, was an eye-witness of most that he records, was one of the close disciples of Jesus. He was John, since Peter and James are ruled out.

Date.—After the Synoptic Gospels, and probably a good while after them. Somewhere about A.D. 90.

John, Ephesus was probably the place. Cf. possible endorsement of Ephesian elders to the book ("we know"—John 21:24.)

Occasion.—The spread of Gnosticism in Asia (cf. Paul's Epistles to the Colossians and Ephesians) made John anxious to correct the perverted views of the person of Christ.

Purpose.—Stated by the author himself in John 20:30 f. He offers proof from the miracles of Jesus that He is the Son of God.

Person of Christ.—Jesus, God (John 1:1) and man (1:14) both. He had real blood (19:34), and He is the only begotten Son (1:18).

Pre-existence of the Word.—Christ as God's Son existed before His human birth—1:1; 17:5.

Prologue.—John 1:1-18 is a remarkable theological interpretation by the author of the twofold nature of Christ, a forecast of the entire Gospel.

Argument.—21:19-20:31 the author discusses the proof of the Incarnation of the God-Man.

Epilogue.—Chap. 21 is by way of addition after the argument was made.

Manifestation of the Messiah.—The body of the book shows how Jesus progressively revealed Himself as the Messiah.

Development of Hostility.—The hatred of Christ's enemies grows with His self-revelation.

Style.—John writes as an old man after long reflection and contemplation. He has much repetition and even monotony of manner, but the calm elevation of style suits his introspective insight.

Dialogues.—The book is remarkable for vivid dialogue, as in chaps. 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7-10, 11, 12, 13-17, 21. In 15 and 16 monologue appears. In 17 the wonderful prayer.

Narratives.—Beautiful narratives occur also in chaps. 1, 2, 4, 11, 21.

Historical Value.—This Gospel has been fiercely attacked as of little historical worth because the style in the dialogues is practically the same as that of the narrative portions. Hence the whole is put by some on a lower plane than the Synoptic Gospels. But none of the Gospels give verbatim reports of the exact Aramaic speeches of Jesus. John gives the sense rather more freely probably, but still he correctly interprets Jesus' miracles. Only eight miracles occur in this Gospel, but several of them are treated at some length and become the occasion of extended address to the people. Cf. John Chaps. 5, 6, 9, 21.

Resurrection of Lazarus.—This famous passage (ch. 11) is bitterly attacked by those who deny the deity of Jesus. Probably Lazarus was still alive when the Synoptic Gospels were written, and hence they did not refer to it. They do give resurrections from the dead by Jesus.

Parables.—No parable occurs in John except brief proverbs or crisp sayings like that in John 2:19, and the allegory of the Good Shepherd in Chap. 10, and the Vine and the Branches in Chap. 15. These symbols (door, shepherd, vine, &c.) are essentially parables.

Demons.—No demoniacs are recorded as healed in this Gospel, though the word occurs, John 8:48.

The Jews.—The author, though a Jew, wrote after the direction of Jerusalem and probably in Ephesus long after the line was sharply drawn between the Jews and the Christians. Hence he refers to the Jews as hostile to Jesus. Cf. Chaps. 7, 8, 9, &c.

The Samaritans.—A good deal about them. Cf. John the Baptist's ministry there (ch. 3:23). Woman at Well of Sychar (ch. 4). Jewish enmity at Samaritans (8:48).

Testimony of the Baptist.—In John Chap. 1. Much not elsewhere about the Baptist's testimony to Jesus.

Relation to Synoptics.—Entirely new matter, save feeding of the Five Thousand (ch. 6) and Passover Week (18-20).

Supplementary, not contradictory.—Evidently written in full view of the Synoptic Gospels and gives additional and confirmatory matter. Picture of Jesus essentially the same.—In the Synoptic Gospels (cf. Warfield's "Lord of Glory," Denney's "Jesus and the Gospel") Jesus is both divine and human. The human side of Jesus is prominent also in the Fourth Gospel (cf. ch. 4, 6, 12).

First Year of Ministry.—But for John's Gospel the entire first year of Christ's active work would be unknown.

Feasts and Chronology.—John mentions three Passovers in the Lord's ministry (2:13; 6:4; 13:1). Hence the ministry was over two years in length. There was probably another Passover not mentioned (cf. 5:1). But for John's Gospel no more than one year would be known.

Jerusalem.—In the Synoptic Gospels Galilee is the centre of Christ's work. In John, Jerusalem is the centre. Luke (13:34) implies this Jerusalem ministry. John fills it out.

Striking Characters.—We are indebted to John's Gospel for pictures of a number of interesting persons like John the Baptist, Simon Peter, Nathaniel, Nicodemus, the Woman at the Well, the Man born blind, Lazarus, Mary, Martha, Annas, Caiaphas, Pilate, Joseph of Arimathea, Philip and Thomas.

The Comforter.—This Gospel gives the fullest treatment (14-16) of the work and mission of the Holy Spirit.

Key Words.—Truth, as in 1:17; 8:32; 16:13; 17:17. Life, as in 1:4; 6:33-56; 11:25. Light, as in 1:4 ff.; 1:9; 8:12; 9:5; 12:35. Witness, as in 5:31; 15:27, &c. Believe, as in 1:12; 5:31; 6:30; 8:31, &c. Love, as in 13:34; 14:21; 15:2, &c. Judgment, as 3:19; 5:22, 27; 9:39, &c. World, as in 1:10; 17:13 f. Darkness, 1:5, &c.

Quotations.—Much fewer than in the Synoptic Gospels. They are found in John 1:23, 29, 51; 2:17; 6:31; 7:38, 42; 8:17, 39; 10:34; 12:13, 14, 27, 38, 40; 13:18; 15:25; 19:24, 36, 37.

Relation to John's Epistles.—The same general style is manifest in the Epistles of John, and the same man wrote them. The Epistles assume the Gospel (Westcott). In the Gospel the deity of Jesus is proved on the assumption of His humanity. In the Epistles the humanity is shown on the assumption of His deity (Westcott).

Relation to Apocalypse.—The differences between the Apocalypse and the Fourth Gospel are so many that some scholars refuse to credit both books to the same author. Some reject one, some the other. There are, however, many points of peculiar contrast and the variations have an explanation. The Apocalypse may be in John's own unedited Greek (Acts 4:13; Rev. 1:10), while the Gospel may have had revision by the Elders of Ephesus (John 21:24).

* NEW BIRTH: Initial Step in a Radical Change from Spiritual Apathy to Life.—Christians begin as Babies—I Cor. 3:1; Gal. 6:15; Heb. 5:13; I Pet. 2:2.

Begotten of God by the Spirit.—John 1:13; 3:3-9; Titus 3:5; I John 2:29; 5:18.

20 "The Jews therefore said, 4 Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou raise it up in three days? 21 But he spake of the temple of his body. 22 When therefore he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he spake this; and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.

23 Now when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, during the feast, many believed on his name, beholding his signs which he did. 24 But Jesus did not trust himself unto them, for that he knew all men, 25 and because he needed not that any one should bear witness concerning man; for he himself knew what was in man.

3 Now there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: 2 the same came unto him by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no one can do these signs that thou doest, except God be with him. 3 Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except one be born anew, he cannot see the kingdom of God. 4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter a second time into his mother's womb, and be born? 5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. 6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. 7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born anew. 8 The wind bloweth where it will, and thou hearest the voice thereof, but knowest not whence it cometh,

"Father" worketh even until now, and I work. 18 For this cause therefore the "Jews" sought the more to "kill him, because he not only" brake the "sabbath, but also called God his own Father, 'making himself' equal with God.

19 Jē'sūs therefore answered and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father doing: for what things soever he doeth, these the Son also doeth in like manner. 20 "For the Father "loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and "greater works than these will he show him, that ye may marvel. 21 For as the Father 'raiseth the 'dead and 'giveth them "life, even so "the Son also giveth life to whom he will. 22 For neither doth the Father "judge any "man, but "he hath given all judgment unto the Son; 23 that all may "honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. "He that honoreth not the Son honoreth not the Father that sent him. 24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my "word, and "believeth him that sent me, hath "eternal life, and "cometh not into "judgment, but hath

 20 These ^f words spake he in ^g the treasury, as ^h he ⁱ taught unto you, that ye shall die in lieve that ^b I am he, ye shall die in your ^c sins. 25 They said therefore unto him, Who art thou? Jē-šūs said unto them,

11 Now a certain ^aman was ^bsick, Láz-á-rūs of ^cBēth-á-nŷ, of the ^dvillage of ^eMary and her ^fsister ^gMartha. 2 And it was that Mary who ^hanointed ⁱthe Lord with ^jointment, and wiped his ^kfeet with her ^lhair, whose ^mbrother Láz-á-rūs was sick. 3 The sisters therefore sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, ⁿhe whom thou ^olovest is sick. 4 But when Jē-šūs heard it, he said, This sickness is not unto ^pdeath, but for ^qthe glory of God, ^rthat the ^sSon of God may be glorified thereby. 5 Now Jē-šūs loved Martha, and her sister, and Láz-á-rūs. 6 When therefore he heard that he was sick, he abode at that time two ^tdays in the place where he was. 7 Then after this he saith to the ^udisciples, ^vLet us go into ^wJū-dæ-á again. 8 The disciples say unto him, ^xRāb-ābī, the ^yJews were but now seeking ^zto stone thee; and goest thou thither again? 9 Jē-šūs answered, ^aAre there not twelve ^bhours in the day? If a man ^cwalk in the day, he ^dstumbleth not, because he seeth the ^elight of this ^fworld. 10 But if a man walk in the ^gnight, he stumbleth, because the light is not in him. 11 These come and take away both our ^a place and our ^b nation. 49 But a certain one of them, ^c Cā'jā-phās, being ^d high priest that ^e year, said unto them, Ye ^f know nothing at all, 50 nor do ye take account that ^h it is expedient for you that one ⁱ man should ^j die ^k for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. 51 Now this he said not of himself: but being high priest that year, he ^{l m n} prophesied that Jē'gūs should die ^o for the nation; 52 and not for the nation only, but that he might also ^p gather together into ^q one the ^r children of God that are scattered abroad. 53 So from that ^s day forth they ^{t u v} took counsel that they might put him to death.

54 Jē'gūs therefore ^w walked no more openly among the ^x Jews, but departed thence into the country near to the ^y wilderness, into a ^z city called ^a E'z-phrā'im; and there he tarried with the ^{b c d} disciples. 55 Now ^e the passover of the Jews was at ^f hand: and many went up to ^g Jē-ry'sā-lēm out of the country before the passover, ^h to purify themselves. 56 They

12 days before ^{p q} the passover came to ^r Bēth'ā-n'y, where ^s Lāz'ā-rūs was, whom Jē'gūs ^t raised from the dead. 2 So they ^u made him a ^v supper there: and ^w Martha served; but Lāz'ā-rūs was one of them that ^x sat at ^y meat with him. 3 ^{z a} Mary therefore took a ^b pound of ointment of ^{c d} pure nard, very precious, and ^e anointed the feet of Jē'gūs, and wiped his ^f feet with her ^g hair: and the ^h house was filled with the ⁱ odor of the ointment. 4 But ^{j k} Jū'dās Is-cār'īt-ōt, one of his disciples, that should ^l betray him, saith, 5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred ^m shillings, and given to the ⁿ poor? 6 Now this he said, not because he cared for the poor;

25 These things have I spoken unto you, while yet abiding with you. 26 But the ²⁵¹ Comforter, even the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all that I said unto you. 27 Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. 28 Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be fearful. 28 Ye heard how I said to you, I go away, and I come unto you. If ye loved me, ye would have rejoiced, because I go unto the Father: for the Father is greater than I. 29 And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe. 30 I will no more speak much with you, for the prince of the world cometh: and he hath nothing in me; 31 but that the world may know that I love the Father, for I find no ^a crime in him. 7 The ^c Jews answered him, ^d We have a ^e law, and by that law ^f he ought to ^h die, because he ⁱ made himself the ^k Son of ^l God. 8 When ^m Pil^late therefore heard this saying, he was the more ⁿ afraid; 9 and he ^o entered into the ^p Præ-tō-ri-um again, and saith unto Jē^q-šūs, Whence art thou? But ^r Jē^q-šūs gave him no answer. 10 Pil^late therefore saith unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? ^s I knowest thou not that I have ^t power to release thee, and have ^u power to ^v crucify thee? 11 Jē^q-šūs answered him, ^w Thou wouldest have no ^x power against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore ^y he that delivered me unto thee hath greater ^z sin. 12 Upon this Pil^late sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, ^a If thou release this ^b man, thou art not ^c Cæ^q-sār's ^d friend: every one that maketh himself a ^e king ^f speaketh against Cæ^q-sār. 13 ^g When Pil^late therefore heard these ^h words, he brought Jē^q-šūs out, and ⁱ sat down on the ^j judgment-seat at a place called The ^k Pavement, but in ^l Hebrew, Gāb^h-bā-thā. 14 Now it was the ^m Preparation of the ⁿ passover:

he said, I am ^a King of the Jews. 22 ^b Pilate answered, ^c What I have written I have written.

23 ^d The ^e soldiers therefore, when they had ^f crucified Jē-šūs, took his ^g garments and made ^h four parts, to every soldier a part; and also the ⁱ coat: now the ^j coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. 24 They said therefore one to another, ^k Let us not rend it, but ^l cast lots for it, whose it shall be: ^m that the ⁿ scripture might be fulfilled, which saith,

^o They parted my garments among them,
And upon my vesture did they cast lots.

25 These things therefore the soldiers did. ^p But there were standing by the ^q cross of Jē-šūs ^r his mother, and his mother's ^s sister, Mary the ^t wife of ^u Clōl pās, and ^v Mary Māg-dā-lē-nē. 26 When Jē-šūs therefore saw his mother, and ^w the disciple standing by whom he ^x loved, he saith unto his mother, ^y Woman, behold, thy ^z son! 27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold, thy mother! And from that ^a hour the disciple took her unto ^b his own ^c home.

31 ^p The Jews therefore, because it was ^q the Preparation, that ^r the bodies should not remain on the cross upon the ^s sabbath (for the ^t day of that sabbath was a high ^u day), asked of Pilate that their ^v legs might be broken, and ^w that they might be taken away. 32 The soldiers therefore came, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other that was ^x crucified with him: 33 but when they came to Jē-šūs, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs: 34 howbeit one of the soldiers with a ^y spear pierced his side, and straightway there came out ^z blood and ^a water. 35 And he that hath seen hath ^b borne ^c witness, and his witness is ^d true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye also may ^e believe. 36 For these things came to pass, ^f that the scripture might be fulfilled, A ^g bone of him shall not be ^h broken. 37 And again another

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES: Title.—Not in all the early scripts and, in truth, it is not an exact description of the . . . Most of the Twelve Apostles are not referred to after . . . 2, and the bulk of the book recounts the work of other . . . the Twelve, as Stephen and Philip (6-8), Barnabas (11), Paul (9, 13-28). Besides, a number of speeches occur by Peter, Stephen, Paul. But the title is not likely to be used by a better one, if such an one could be found. . . . He is the same as the author of the Gospel accord- . . . Luke (Acts 1:1), to which book he alludes. He is a . . . of Paul (Acts 18:10) and a physician. It is now as- . . . trated that Luke is the author of both Gospel and epistles.—He is called "most excellent" (Lu. 1:3), and . . . ably was a man of some standing. "The Acts," as the . . . pel," was intended not merely for his personal but for . . . al circulation, especially among the Gentile Christians. . . . had in mind the same circle of readers for both books. . . . It was written after the Gospel, though how long . . . is not known. Critics do not agree; but it is probable on . . . hole that Acts was written by Luke in Rome while with . . . during his first imprisonment. This would explain best . . . adden close of Acts with Paul still prisoner (28:30 f.), . . . two years in Rome in his own hired house.

Possible Editions.—Lightfoot suggested that Luke . . . two editions of both Gospel and Acts. Blom holds that . . . Acts be issued a rough first edition (text of D), and then . . . it for Theophilus and sent it east (text of B). The . . . id he considers a briefer text. The point is still in dis-son to Luke's Gospel.—The Acts is a continuation of . . . opel. Indeed the same event, the Ascension, closes one . . . and opens the other. Luke considers that it is the same . . . "concerning all that Jesus began, both to do and to . . . " (Acts 1:1).

Relation to Paul's Epistles.—There is no mention of any of . . . Epistles in the Acts. It is not certain that Luke had . . . any of them when he wrote the book. If he wrote in . . . about A.D. 63, the Pastoral Epistles had not, of course, . . . written. The Epistles of the First Imprisonment had . . . sent on their mission. The other Epistles were sent to . . . alosica, Corinth, Galatia, Rome. The one to Rome he . . . have seen. The one to Galatia he probably did not see. . . . alosica and Corinth were not far from Philippi. The account of the installation of the Lord's Supper in Lu. 22:17-20 is quite similar to that in I Cor. 11:23-26. Paul claims to have had a direct revelation from the Lord on the subject (I Cor. 11:23). Luke may indeed have seen Paul's narrative. But, however this may be, the Acts and the Epistles supplement each other in a truly marvellous manner. Cf. Paley, "Home Paulina," and Knowling, "The Witness of the Epistles." The absence of references makes the supplementing all the more striking. There are difficulties as concerning Acts 15 and Gal. 2, but they are not insuperable.

Sources.—In the Gospel (1:1-4) Luke tells the character of the material used. As a competent historian we merely assume that he used the same care in writing Acts. He was himself a witness of part of the narrative and he there speaks in the first person—16:10-40; 20:6-28:31. We do not know his sources for the remainder of the book, but it is not difficult to guess it in part. For all of Paul's career sketched by Luke he had Paul himself with whom Luke was so long as in Caesarea and Rome. Then, besides, John Mark was in Rome with Luke and could tell much about the early apostolic era. Luke saw also Mnason, an early disciple—21:16. He was the guest of Philip in Caesarea (Acts 21:8), besides the long stay in Caesarea. Luke saw James, the Lord's brother, in Jerusalem (21:18), who was present in Jerusalem continuously since the Great Day of Pentecost. Cf. Knowling, "Expositor's Greek Testament." It is plain that he had ample material.

Choice of Material.—The principles that governed Luke in the use of the abundant material are not made plain to us in the book. One feels sure that accuracy and interest were two of them. He begins with Jerusalem, which, not Galilee, is now the centre of Christian life. Then he extends the circle to Samaria and Philistia. Then the Gentiles come in, and the whole Roman Empire is brought within the horizon. The book closes at Rome, the Capital of the Empire.

Main Personages.—The work expands through new agents. At Jerusalem the Holy Spirit falls upon the 120 and Peter is the leading spirit ably supported by John. Peter and John arouse the antagonism of the Sadducees by reason of the preaching of the resurrection of Jesus. But Stephen, not one of the Twelve, stirs the Pharisees to activity by his accent on the spiritual nature of worship. Philip, another of the Seven Deacons, carries the gospel to Samaria and Philistia. Peter and Barnabas (after the men of Cyprus and Cyrene) are the early instruments in starting the work among the Gen-titles. But these all pale before Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles, whose activities occupy more than half of the Acts. Paul is Luke's hero in this volume. In the outward movement new leaders come to the front.

The First Church History.—In a true sense of the term "The Acts" is the first book of Church history. Luke has the grasp of the situation of the real historian. He is not a mere chronicler. He is interpreting for us the origin and early growth of Christianity. The cause of Christ has much to be grateful for in that the first historian of Christian origins was Luke.

A Book of Missions.—The dominant note of the book is the missionary cause. The disciple first had to understand the significance of the life and message of Jesus. They had won back faith and hope by the resurrection of Christ. With the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost they grasped the full meaning of the work of Christ in relation to the Old Testament and the present (see Peter's address in Acts chap. 2). They were charged with power to expound that story to others. The Acts is the wonderful unfolding of this growing apprehension how Hellenistic Jews could be saved by faith in Jesus, how Samaritans (half Jews) could be redeemed, how proselytes (cf. the Ethiopian eunuch) could be saved by Christ, how Romans (cf. Cornelius) and Greeks (Antioch and the missionary tours of Paul) could be redeemed without becoming Jews. This was a difficult process on the part of the Twelve Apostles themselves (cf. Peter at Joppa, Caesarea, Jerusalem, Antioch), but it was accomplished. Some of the Jerusalem Christians never rose to this breadth of view. They fought Paul, who became the exponent of the free gospel of grace for the whole world. Acts recounts this battle for freedom and shows how Paul was finally caught in the meshes of Jewish hate. The book leaves Paul a prisoner in Rome because, probably, Luke wrote while in Rome with him.

Judaizing Controversy.—The conflict with the Pharisaic wing of the Jerusalem Christians (Acts 15) gave a new conception of Christianity, one free from the shackles of Jewish ceremonialism. The Gospel took wings and flew all over the Roman world, a spiritual gospel, the Pauline interpretation of the Gospel endorsed by Peter, John, and James, the Lord's Brother.

Holy Spirit in Acts.—In a real sense the book is the record of how the Holy Spirit filled the early Christians and sent them out into the world as spiritual dynamos. The power of Peter, of Stephen, of Philip, of Paul, is the power of the Holy Spirit.

Power the Keynote.—The dominant idea of the book is that of power, the power of the Holy Spirit.

Acts and the Ministry of Jesus.—The writer of Acts is definitely aware of the work of Christ and refers to his own book on that subject (Acts 1:1). He conceives his second volume to be a continuation of the first volume and a continuation of the work of Jesus. In the Gospels we have the record of what "Jesus began both to do and to teach" (both works and teaching). In the Acts Jesus is still inspirer and director of the activities of the Christians. Cf. this conception of Luke (Acts 1:1), of the continuing activity of Jesus after his Ascension with the last message of Jesus recorded in Mt. 28:20: "I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

The Holy Spirit in Acts.—But Jesus works through the Holy Spirit in the Apostolic period (and now). He had said that the Comforter would come to carry on his work "forever"—John 14:16. This great event is recorded as realized in Acts 2. The Dispensation of the Holy Spirit is thus inaugurated. He was not simply to teach the disciples all truth (John 14:26), especially the comprehension of Christ Himself (John 16:14), but they would do greater works (in degree, not kind) than Jesus had done—John 14:12 f. This story of expansion is set forth in the Acts. The great Day of Pentecost itself shows more converts (three thousand) than all of the earthly ministry of Jesus did (above five hundred, I Cor. 15:6). The Promise of the Father was realized on that day. The rest of the Book of Acts is a description of the disciples at work under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. It is, in a true sense, the Acts of the Holy Spirit. In Jerusalem, in Caesarea, in Antioch, in Troas, the Holy Spirit moves and guides to the larger movements in the apostolic work.

Persecution.—Acts is full of persecution of the disciples by the Sadducees (4 and 5), by the Pharisees (6-9), by the state (Herod Agrippa, ch. 12), by Pharisaic Christians (Acts 15 f.), and from Acts 13 to the end of the book there is a succession of persecutions for Paul and his friends all over the world. But Paul is chief sufferer as he had once been chief persecutor.

Credibility of Acts.—It used to be the custom for some scholars to belittle the historical value of Acts. But Luke has been vindicated on so many points of detail that he is now in high favor as a reliable historian. See Chase, "The Credibility of Acts"; Ramsay, "St. Paul the Traveller."

Speeches in Acts.—In particular the speeches in Acts are said to be made to order by Luke. But Luke heard Paul's speech at Miletus (ch. 20) and those in Jerusalem, Caesarea, and Rome—chs. 21-28. The speeches of Paul at Antioch in Pisidia (ch. 13) and at Athens (ch. 17) may very well have been preserved by Paul in notes and suit marvelously the conditions. In like manner Luke may have gotten notes of Peter's addresses, and Paul heard Stephen's—Ch. 7. There is no real ground for disputing the accuracy of their addresses without insisting on a verbatim report.

Three Parts of Acts.—The book falls naturally into three parts. One has Jerusalem for a centre (chs. 1-12); another has Antioch as a centre (chs. 13-1-21:15); the other shows Paul battling with his enemies in Jerusalem, Caesarea, Rome—chs. 21:15-28:31. These are thus shifting centres of Christian influence. The power of Christianity follows the line of missionary activity, not of mere verbal orthodoxy.

Picture of Jesus in Acts.—Jesus had said that the Holy Spirit would teach the disciples about Him. In "The Acts" we see the disciples expounding the work and words of Jesus. After the great Pentecost they are able to interpret Jesus to men with power. They use His Resurrection in connection with His claims to prove His Messiahship. They worship Him as Lord and Saviour. The Christianity of the Acts is essentially the same as that of the Epistles and harmonizes with the claims of Jesus in the Gospels.

Conversion of Saul.—The two outstanding events in the Acts are the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost and the conversion of Saul of Tarsus. These two events explain the story of the book and, indeed, largely explain the history of early Christianity.

Personality of Paul.—The figure of Paul dominates the book as he has largely dominated (and rightly so) Christian history since the first century.

Voyage to Rome.—Chapter 27 is a notable contribution to the world's knowledge of ancient seafaring apart from one's interest in Paul, the most important source indeed for that knowledge.

Chronology of Acts.—Luke mentions several rulers like Herod Agrippa (death, ch. 12) and Felix and Festus. But it is not very easy to work out a consistent chronology of the events in Acts. As a working hypothesis we may assume that Paul was with Barnabas at Antioch about A. D. 44, and that Festus succeeded Felix A. D. 59 or 60.

Old Testament Quotations.—They are found in Acts 1:20; 2:17-21, 25-28; 3:22 f. (cf. 7:37); 25: 4:25, 26; 7:3, 8, 6 f., 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 f., 17-19, 20 f., 22, 23-29, 30, 31, 32, 33 f., 35, 37, 40, 44, 46 f., 49 f.; 8:32 f.; 13:17-21, 25, 33, 34, 41, 47; 14:15 (17:24); 15:16 f.; 17:31; 23:5; 26:18, 22 f.; 28:26 f.

Acts and the Epistles of Paul.—It is clear that the Acts was written by Luke in complete independence of the Epistles of Paul. It is hardly probable that Luke while at Philippi saw the Thessalonian Epistles or the Corinthian group. It is reasonably clear that he had not seen Galatians when he wrote Acts 15. In Gal. chap. 2, Paul gives the private account of the Jerusalem Conference to show his independence of the Twelve, though showing his essential agreement with them. In Acts chap. 15, Luke gives the general recital of the public aspects of the meeting, but with hints of friction (Acts 15:4 f.). It is possible that Luke was the amanuensis of Paul during the first Roman Captivity—Col. 4:14. If so, he would be familiar with the contents and style of these Epistles. It is just in these letters that we find most similarity between Acts and Paul's Epistles. But on the whole it may be said that the Epistles were written in independence of the Acts and the Acts in independence of the Epistles. The Epistles of the captivity do not touch the period covered by the Acts, save the two years in Rome—Acts 28:30.

Luke may have had the benefit of Paul's suggestions at many points for the latter part of Acts, as he may have received help from John Mark and Philip for the earlier portions, not to mention notes of the various addresses which Luke did not himself hear. But there is no apparent effort to harmonize Acts with the Epistles. Still they supplement each other in a marvellous manner. Wherever they touch they must be blended to get the full light. Paul is intent on the problems in hand when he writes his Epistles. Luke has in mind the movements of Christianity in its expanding progress and selects his material for his own purpose. Luke gives us a real history, though along a line of his own choosing.

† GRECIAN, or GREEK-SPEAKING JEWS.—In Acts 6:1 a distinction is made between the Christian Jews who belonged to the Dispersion and spoke Greek (Hellenists), and the Christian Jews who were Palestinians and spoke Aramaic (Hebrews). The term Hellenist occurs also in Acts 9:29 for Jews of the Dispersion now in Jerusalem; while in Acts 11:20 the Revised Version (American) correctly reads "Greeks also."

7 And ^y the word of God increased; and ^z the number of the disciples multiplied in ^a Jeru-sā-lēm exceedingly; and a great company of the ^b priests were ^c obedient to ^d the faith.
